MRS. SMALL IS STRICKEN AND DIES MONDAY

Wife of Illinois Governor Taken Ill Saturday at Celebration Over Husband's Acquittal

STRAIN OF LONG TRIAL PROVES TOO MUCH FOR GOVERNOR'S LADY

Stood Loyally by Husband During Indictment and Trial on Fraud Charges

KANKAKEE, Ill.—Mrs. Len Small, wife of Governor Small of Illinois, died about eight o'clock Monday morning.

Mrs. Small was stricken with apoplexy Saturday night during the excitement incident to the celebration of friends and fellow townsmen of the governor as a result of his acquittal that afternoon at Waukegan, Ill. With her at the time of her death was the governor and their three children, Leslie and Budd Small, and Mrs. A. E. Inglesh, all of Kankakee.

The long trial of nine weeks at Waukegan had been a heavy strain both on the governor and his wife. Mrs. Small, however, had borne up under the strain exceedingly well, it had appeared, until she was stricken and sank into the governor's arms as the noise of the celebrators filled the neighborhood about their home.

Physicians who attended Mrs. Small at the time offered no hope for her recovery and throughout Sunday night she lay in a coma as the governor and their children watched by the bedside. The governor refused to leave her.

Born on Farm

Mrs. Small was born December 17, 1861, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Moore of Kankakee county. Her parents were prominent farmers and she grew up amid farming surroundings as did the governor.

Mr. Small and the governor were married November 21, 1883, and spent all of their married life, except for the official residence at Springfield when the governor was elected executive, in Kankakee. Mrs. Small's loyalty to her husband was an outstanding trait of her character.

During the period since last July when the charges in connection with the handling of state funds during the governor's term as state treasurer were made, Mrs. Small stood staunchly by her husband. She appeared with him whenever possible and sat with him much of the time during the trial at Waukegan.

She was by his side when the acquittal came and again stood with him at the celebration on the governor's return home, where the towns-people turned out to welcome them and extend congratulations.

Collapses at Reception

Mrs. Small collapsed just at the end of the home coming reception for the governor. After standing with her husband on the front steps of their home for an hour or more, bowing and smiling to the cheers of several hundreds of friends, the tooting of automobile horns and the playing of a band, she had just re-entered the house when she suddenly swayed and put her hand on the governor's arm.

"O, I'm so faint," she said. Without another word she sank unconscious into the governor's arms. These were her last words. She sank from then on deeper and deeper into the coma which enveloped her.

Governor in Tears

Gov. Small was heartbroken. He burst into tears when the physicians told him there was no hope.

The whole city of Kankakee gave assistance in an heroic effort to save Mrs. Small. Friends of the Small family, following the report of the stroke, spread the streets with straw for several blocks in the vicinity of the home, to prevent noise. Inside the home not the slightest noise was permitted.

Police lines also were drawn about the house. As news of Mrs. Small's serious condition—reports that she was dying—spread about the city, a silent crowd waited for the end just beyond the police zone. To add to the solemnity all shades in the house were tightly drawn.

Blames Politics

CHICAGO, Ill.—The charges against Governor Small and of which he was acquitted Saturday, led to Mrs. Small's death, Samuel A. Ettelson, corporation counsel of Chicago, declared Monday when informed of the demise of the governor's wife. Mr. Ettelson, who, with Mayor Thompson of Chicago, had been a close friend and political supporter of the governor, declared that politics was behind the prosecution of the governor and that politics therefore, was responsible for Mrs. Small's death.

Fear Kaiser May Attempt A Come-Back

LONDON.—Apprehension exists in Holland lest former Kaiser William attempt to slip away from Doorn and re-enter Germany in the event of a royalist rising following the assassination of Foreign Minister Rathenau, according to the correspondent of the Daily Mail at The Hague.

The writer, however, quotes J. B. Kan, secretary of the Dutch home office, as saying that such apprehension is groundless.

"We have no evidence that the kaiser has any such intention," he said, "and the surveillance maintained around him is so close that it would be impossible for him to get away even if he wished."

The necessity of unity between the commercial enterprises of a city in its dealings with the outside world is a fact of which there is no longer much question. Efficient boosting of a city must be done in unision if it is to be successful in the long run. Sporadic and individual attempts to compete with other cities in the matter of commercial advancement are valuable, but are usually not strong enough to accomplish permanent results.

To gain the fullest success it is not merely necessary for a merchant to be concerned with the growth of his individual business. He must be interested in common with his fellow merchants in advertising their common city, in seeing that its reputation before the world is always sustained, in providing always that if Opportunity in the person of a new college, hospital, factory, or railroad, knocks at the door of his city the latch string may always be on the outside. The prosperity of a merchant of La Crosse and the prosperity of La Crosse are both tied in the same bundle.

Just as a business organization needs a central office to be concerned with the affairs of that business as a whole, a city needs a central body to manage its interests in the outside world. La Crosse is a commercial unit just as it is a political unit and needs a chamber of commerce as much as it needs a city government. City taxes support the city government but the chamber of commerce depends for its entire existence on the voluntary support of La Crosse business men whom it serves.

The value of the Chamber of Commerce to La Crosse during the past year has been unquestioned. We have no data on the actual dollars and cents it has brought to the city, and we suppose none such exists. Its influence, however, for the city's advancement has many undoubted evidences. The chamber has planned a program of extended usefulness for next year and it is hoped that it will be received with thoughtful attention. The Civic Dinner on Monday night will be the occasion of the presentation of this program for approval. Indifference and lack of attendance at this dinner may be a great hindrance and source of discouragement to the chamber. Patriotism to La Crosse demands that the program at least be given a fair hearing.

CHECK FORGER ARRESTED HERE ADMITS LONG TERMS IN PRISON FOR OFFENSE

GEORGE WILLARD, alias Thomas Burns, who it is claimed passed four $30 checks on local merchants Saturday night and who admitted serving two stretches of ten and five years on charges of forgery at Stillwater penitentiary, was arrested by Officer Routhaupt of the local police department as he was about to leave on an evening train for Milwaukee Saturday.

Four Checks Returned

The checks presented for payment by Willard it is claimed Saturday evening were on the State Bank of La Crosse, and were supposed to have been issued by the Farmers' Grain company of Bangor. After purchasing merchandise at each of the places, checks for $30 in favor of Thomas Burns were presented at the Krause Clothing company, Peter Newburg Clothing company, Nels Thompson Clothing company, and the Moss Shoe Company. Other checks were reported to have been passed but as yet have not come in, police said. Willard had $82 when arrested at the Milwaukee depot.

Police reported that Officer Routhaupt entered the Newburg clothing house shortly after the check was passed at that place. He went directly to the Milwaukee station where Willard was arrested. He had purchased a ticket to Milwaukee.

Admits Other Jobs

Willard admitted while his finger prints were being taken at Central station Monday morning that he had served two terms at Stillwater totaling fifteen years. He made the statement that he had never implicated anyone else but himself in his dealings and that in spite of his resolutions to "go straight", he had found himself back at his "old business." He was to be arraigned in court Monday afternoon.

Cleary was last seen in the city on March 22 when he stated that he had secured employment and was going to work at the Adolph Linse farm on Mormon Coulee road. He had made his residence at the home of his brother, Rubard Cleary, 216 Caledonia street, police said. Police said that no evidence of suicide was found. Bielaski Held For Ransom In Mexican Wilds

MEXICO CITY.—By the Associated Press.—A. Bruce Bielaski, chief of the bureau of investigation of the United States department of justice during the war, is being held for ransom by seven bandits who held up his automobile seven miles west of Cuernavaca, in the state of Morelos, Sunday.

Mr. Bielaski, together with his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Barcena of Mexicali, was on the way to view some Aztec ruins near the town. The motorists were nearing the Hacienda de San Gabriel, when the bandits suddenly appeared and stopped them at the point of guns. The women were released but after robbing them the bandits took Mr. Bielaski and Mr. Barcena with them.

ROLAND LARKIN IS HIT BY AUTO AS HE STEPS OFF TROLLEY

Avon Street Youth Dragged 100 Feet by Car Near Rose Street Viaduct

DRIVER STOPS, TAKES HIM TO ST. FRANCIS HOSPITAL

Report Says Accident Happened at Viaduct; Others Say Hagar St.

Roland Larkin, son of J. G. Larkin, 618 Avon street, was struck by an automobile as he was alighting from a street car on Rose street, at midnight Saturday dragged about 100 feet and severely cut and bruised.

Garfield O. Blair of Raleigh, North Carolina, driver of the car, took Larkin to St. Francis hospital where his injuries were dressed and he was then taken to his home. Larkin is under the care of Dr. Skemp.

Reports of Accident Differ

Reports on just how and where the accident happened differ. At police headquarters Monday morning it was said that the street car stopped at the north end of the hill leading to the Rose street viaduct. The driver of the car, the police say did not think the car was going to stop in the middle of the block and therefor did not slow down, passing the front of the street car just as the gate opened and Larkin stepped to the street.

At the Larkin residence it was said the car stopped at the south side of Hagar street, Roland Larkin got off the front end of the trolley and as he stepped to the street the car, traveling at a good rate of speed struck him and dragged him across Hagar street, the auto traveling until about opposite Stifter's meat market before it was stopped.

No written report of the accident was made at the offices of the Wisconsin Railway, Light and Power Co., by the crew of the street car. It was said at the car barn offices that no report was made because Larkin was hurt on the street and not in the car. Superintendent Hedges was not in the city Monday morning. Roy Franklin was motorman and Joan Pitz, conductor, but neither could be reached Monday morning to get their versions of the accident.

Front of Body Bruised

Garfield Blair, whose home is in Raleigh, North Carolina is driving to Canada, with Roy Hector, also of Raleigh. Temporarily they are stopping at Onalaska where they are working in the Onalaska pickle works.

Larkin was bruised and skinned from his neck almost to his feet. His collar was broken in the back and torn off, as was his coat, shirt and trousers.

In a room adjoining the one occupied by Roland Larkin, in the Larkin home, lies Roland's twin brother, Raymond, who has been confined to his bed since last Tuesday suffering from a carbuncle on his neck.

DR. HERBERT ESCAPES INJURY AS CAR GOES INTO DITCH SUNDAY

Dr. Herbert escaped uninjured, but his Ford car was almost completely demolished when it rolled off the La Crescent pike about 1:30 Sunday afternoon.

According to persons who arrived on the scene shortly after the accident, the doctor's car had evidently hit a rut made by the rain washing down the side of the road, throwing it over the bank. The car was turned completely over, and had it not been for a small tree against which it lodged, would have gone on into the water.

HEAD OF SANITARIUM AT WALES IS KILLED IN CLEVELAND ACCIDENT

CLEVELAND, Ohio.—Dr. W. L. Williams, superintendent of the Dane County Tuberculosis sanitarium at Wales, Wis., died in a hospital here Sunday following injuries he received when struck by a street car making a turn in the public square. The accident occurred when Dr. Williams failed to stand clear of the car when it made the curve.

FARRINGTON APPEALS TO ILLINOIS MINERS FOR AID IN CHECKING DISORDERS

Union Already in Disrepute, Says President's Plea, and Violence Will Only Make Enemies; Williamson Buries Victims of Mine War; State Seeks to Fix Responsibility

HERRIN, Ill.—(By the Associated Press.)—Official investigators for state authorities seeking to fix the responsibility for the rioting which cost at least twenty-one lives at the Lester strip mine last week, learned Monday from Sheriff Melvin Thaxton that neither he nor his deputies took any steps to prevent the massacre.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois Federation of Miners, Monday issued an appeal to each of the 340 unions in the state to prevent any outbreaks and to help protect the idle mines.

Violence, Mr. Farrington says, cannot possibly help the union cause. "Already," he says, probably referring to Herrin, "we are in disrespect in the public mind and threatened with litigation which may cripple the union."

Co-operate to Check Disorder

"This is an appeal to you and through you to our members," the appeal said, "that you and they co-operate to keep down disorder and violence.

"Men who are employed at protecting mining property must not be molested in any manner whatever. Repair work, as authorized by accredited representatives of our union, must be continued. Construction work, that does not come under the jurisdiction of our union, must not be interfered with.

"Mines that are operating under permit of the district executive board issued in harmony with international policy must not be disturbed.

Means Cause Hopelessly Lost

"Acts of disorder and violence only stir the public against us and make bitter enemies for us in places where we must have strong friends. Acts of destruction may appease the inflamed and angered minded, but cannot win any permanent success, and if victory depends upon violence our cause is hopelessly lost.

"Already we are in disrepute in the public mind and threatened with litigation that, to say the least, will cripple our union for years to come, if, indeed, the weight of it does not sink the United Mine Workers of America.

"Therefore I appeal to you to enlist the help of the sober thinking members in your local union and have them join you in maintaining order and obedience to the laws of our union and the land."

Williamson Buries Victims

HERRIN, Ill.—By The Associated Press.—Williamson county buried the dead in her latest mine war Sunday, conducted an inquest to determine the cause of their death and Monday faced the responsibility of bringing the guilty to justice.

With not a single arrest made since the massacre of last Thursday, when at least nineteen men were killed after strike sympathizers stormed the Lester mine and with county officials making no visible effort to place the blame, the investigating is being done by state and federal agents.

Representatives of the department of justice, department of labor, the state's attorney general's office and the adjutant general, are quietly delving into the cloak of secrecy which so far has surrounded the identity of the 5,000 men who marched from Herrin in broad daylight, took more than 50 unarmed men prisoner, marched them back down the road into a wood and there killed nineteen and wounded nearly as many more.

Hold Inquest Sunday

Sunday six men of Williamson county, three miners, a merchant, an electrician and the superintendent of the Herrin water works—were solemnly impanelled, listened to the evidence of witnesses called by Coroner McCowen and returned their verdict. They found and so recorded that C. K. McDowell, murdered superintendent of the Lester mine, killed a union miner on Wednesday, the day before the massacre. Of the other dead, nineteen in all, including two other strikers, the jury found they came to their death by gunshot wounds inflicted by unknown persons.

Sunday morning sixteen unknown dead, all non-union workers and guards at the Loster mine, were buried by the county in Potter's field. On a bleak hillside, beneath a broiling sun, union miners, led by State Senator W. J. Sneed, dug sixteen shallow graves—four rows of four each.

Funeral Rites Simple

The bodies of the victims, in plain black caskets, were placed side by side on the parched grass. Four Protestant ministers of Herrin, a Methodist, a Baptist, a Presbyterian and a Christian, conducted the brief burial service, while a hundred overall clad miners and a dozen newspaper correspondents looked on. On a distant hillside three women in starched summer dresses furnished the only touch of color.

The ministerial quartet sang "Nearer My God to Thee," read a psalm, delivered a prayer and in an abbreviated form of burial service, committed the bodies to the earth.

No mention of the dead, nor of the manner of their death, was made at the graveside.

The brief service over, the ministers hurried away to their waiting flocks. The miners shoveled the clay over the rough pine boxes. No flowers graced the graves, but at the head of each the undertaker stuck a little metal sign with a glass-covered card. On each card was a number and the date "June 22, 1922." For each numbered card the undertaker preserved a description of the men, if relatives should appear to claim him.

RAILROADS HELD IN VIOLATION OF U. S. TRANSPORT ACT

Farming Out System of Piece Work Contrary to Federal Law Rules Labor Board

DECISION EXPECTED TO HAVE LITTLE EFFECT ON STRIKE

Result of Referendum to be Announced Wednesday

CHICAGO, Ill.—By The Associated Press.—Saturday's decisions by the United States labor board holding several roads in violation of the transportation act by farming out work to contractors, and pending opinions on thirty more cases which were posted for hearing Monday, are expected to have little influence on union leaders towards averting the threatened rail strike next month.

B. M. Jewell, head of the railway employes' department of the American Federation of Labor, who is in charge of the canvass of the shopmen's strike vote, said the result of the referendum would probably not be announced until Wednesday.

Hope of averting a strike faded with statements by John Scott, secretary of the railway employes department, that the board's ruling in the contract cases will put no check on a strike call. Piece-work and the farming out system were made one of the issues in the shopmen's referendum, the others being the wage cuts effective July 1 and rules by the board governing overtime and other working conditions.

Tabulate Strike Vote

DETROIT, Mich.—By The Associated Press.—Tabulation of the strike vote authorized by the executive council of the United Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employes and Railway Shop Laborers, May 30, in protest against a wage cut, ordered by the United States railroad labor board, started here Monday at the general headquarters of the organization.

The complete vote it is expected, will be in about July 5, and in the event the union votes in favor of a walkout, E. A. Grable, grand president is vested with authority to stop wok immediately.

The vote takes in mechanics, sectionmen, trackmen, bridge builders, painters, carpenters, cinder pit men, painters and common laborers.

DRY OFFICER HITS BLAINE'S PARDONS OF DRY VIOLATORS

Has Freed Enough Moonshiners and Bootleggers to Control Election Declares Hutton

DENIES REPORT DRY LEAGUE HAS "REPUDIATED" MORGAN

Statement Commends Law Enforcement Program

MADISON, Wis.—The editorial expression of one Wisconsin weekly newspaper, widely quoted throughout the state, that the anti-saloon league had "repudiated" Attorney General William J. Morgan, finding no difference between his platform and that on which Governor J. J. Blaine will stand for reelection, was said Monday by R. P. Hutton, superintendent of the league to "listen like a moonshine rhapsody."

"The statement that there was no difference between the platform of Mr. Morgan and the proclaimated choice of the convention boss, is a midsummer night's dream," Mr. Hutton said. "When Mr. Morgan's statement of principles is promulgated we predict that there will be a difference.

"If his statement is consistent with his previous speeches he will declare for law enforcement and against such vote catching fakes as light wines and beer, home brew, medicinal beer, liquor prescriptions for miners and all of the other frauds and loans which characterized the present administration during the last legislative session.

"Sometimes what a man does shouts so loudly you cannot hear what he says," Mr. Hutton continued in his statement. "Governor Blaine has a 'platform of performances.' His pardons of moonshiners and bootleggers constitute the chief discouragement to law enforcers, and are the silver lining of the prohibition cloud from the standpoint of the thirsty.

"In a close election the moonshiners and bootleggers already pardoned might hold the balance of power. On the other hand, Attorney General Morgan, instead of shedding tears for the law-breaker, is shedding sweat for the law-abidiner. It is refreshing to have in the office of the attorney general someone who works at the job.

"Governor Blaine's pardon of John Reppa of Kenosha, giving the reason that Reppa was poor, uncovers a new principle of law. Certainly the governor would repeal the pardoning of a man solely because he was rich. It is equally bad to pardon a man solely because he is poor. Either procedure promotes lawlessness.

"Here was a man convicted by a jury of his fellow citizens after a prosecution by a man whom Governor Blaine himself appointed, and without evidence of penitence or reform and with no hint that in the future the public will be safe, if the guilty man is released. Governor Blaine pardons him.

"Wilson J. Morgan's stand for strict law enforcement has strengthened respect for law, increased law observance and made life and liberty secure. Governor Blaine's pardons hamper law enforcement and decrease the law breakers' fear to violate the law. There is a decided difference in the 'platform of performance.'

"The anti-saloon league makes no slates. It brings out no candidates. It gives, with approval or disapproval, the records of candidates who come out, in indice their past activities, present statements, and their affiliations and connections, business, social and political, which might influence them either wet or dry. There will be no repudiation of Mr. Morgan or any other candidate because there never can be any endorsement."

"THREE LIVE GHOSTS" AT RIVOLI

One of the most delightful photoplays shown here in many weeks is "Three Live Ghosts," which was presented with no inconsiderable success at the Rivoli theater last night. The story deals with three lads who after being reported "missing," escape from a German prison camp and on reaching London prove themselves to be live ghosts indeed. The featured players are Anna Q. Nilsson and Norman Kerry, both well known to Paramount audiences. The picture is artistic and the supporting cast all that the most exacting taste could demand.

RIVIERA TODAY

A story of the homely southern sentiment of mother love with all the magnificence and grandeur as only the southern spirit can be portrayed is seen in "My Old Kentucky Home," one of the big motion pictures of the year. The picture abounds in thrills, sparkling repartee and is of the melodramatic type. It is said to be to the south what "Way Down East" is to New England.

A young man, son of a proud and haughty southern widow, is finally released from Sing Sing where he has done a term, having been railroaded. Upon hearing the strains of "My Old Kentucky Home" he becomes homesick. The boy's mother has entered "Dixie," her prize horse, in the derby, and in one of the wildest racing scenes ever witnessed, end "Dixie" wins and the boy and his sweetheart come into their own.

"The Oath," the photoplay which opens tomorrow at the Rivoli, is a revelation in the art of the motion picture. In it R. A. Walsh has obtained two intensely dramatic effects which have been marked by critics as being important advances in the art of motion picture direction.

The first is given the audience a distinct effect of having witnessed a tragedy without ever showing the actual act itself. The second scene which is regarded as notable is the entire lack of confusion in putting over the most dramatic incident ever shown in a motion picture.

The climax of the court room scene in "The Oath" is as gripping a piece of screen art as has ever been produced.

NEW SHOW AT THE MAJESTIC

"Bits of Life," Marshall Neilan's latest film production, will be the screen attraction at the Majestic, today and Tuesday.

Anna Q. Nilsson and Norman Kerry in "Three Live Ghosts," at the Rivoli today.

The production is divided into four episodes, each episode being based on one of the four stories. The first is taken from Mr. McMorrow's "The Bad Samaritan," which appeared in the "Popular Magazine," the second from Mr. Trumbull's "The Man Who Heard Everything," published in Smart Set," the third from Mr. Wilcox's "Saturday Evening Post" story, "Hop," and the fourth from Mr. Neilan's original story, "The Strange Adventure."

The cast includes Wesley Barry, Lon Chaney, Noah Beery, Harriett Hammond, Rockcliffe Fellowes, James Bradbury, Jr., Fred Burton, Anna May Wong and others.

CASINO TODAY

Preachers, philosophers, teachers and many others of a profound turn of mind have given their unqualified endorsement to "The Bigamist," the smashing indictment of bigamy, in which the beautiful Ivy Duke is entertaining thousands of screen devotees throughout the country. "The Bigamist" will be screened at the Casino today.

Although "The Bigamist" is in no sense preachey, it drives home a tremendous lesson—a lesson which should be absorbed by every man and woman—especially married folk with children. It is based on F. E. Mills Young's great novel of the same title.

STRAND TODAY

"Reckless Youth," starring Elaine Hammerstein, which is to be shown at the Strand today, is a splendid example of the lengths to which modern motion picture producers will go to produce realism and entertainment for photoplay devotees.

As a mere incident of the story there is mentioned the collision of a big Transatlantic liner and an ocean going yacht. The collision does not actually take place but comes to the heroine while she is unconscious to help point out to her the error of her ways.

"Reckless Youth" is from a story by Cosmo Hamilton. Niles Welch, Myrtle Stedman, Louise Prussing, and Frank Currier are prominent in the supporting cast.

METROPOLITAN QUINTETTE NOW SHOWING AT THE RIVOLI

The coolest, happiest place in La Crosse was the Rivoli theater last night where this company of vocal artists, including Bobbie Pierce, a little dancing girl of unusual ability, opened their engagement for the entire week. All of these artists are known to La Crosse theater patrons, they having played here recently with the Dunbar Opera Follies.

Hazel Moor, she of the titian hair and bewitching smile, will be perhaps best remembered as the young lady who won second prize in the Salvation Army doughnut drive here last October while appearing with Boyle Woolfolk's "All Girl Revue." Julia Keith sings "Love Sends a Little Gift of Roses" with rare musical unction and proved one of the favorites of the evening. This company have a most varied offering and if you enjoy jazz-music they have it and for those who enjoy a more pretentious vocal effort we recommend La Crosse music lovers hearing Mr. Reynolds sing Rudyard Kipling's "On the Road to Mandalay"—a good song wonderfully sung. Mr. Roshig the tenor with the company is also a cornetist of unusual ability and in the new program which will be offered beginning Tuesday Roshig will include a good cornet solo.

The Ralph Dunbar attractions are well known in La Crosse and it is interesting to note that Mr. Reynolds was for ten years associate manager and producer of all Dunbar productions and has only recently launched himself as an independent producer and if the Metropolitan Quintette is a sample of the future productions which he promises, a Rex Reynolds company will always be welcome in La Crosse. The Rivoli management deserve great credit for securing this organization for a midsummer engagement.

The Constitution

COLLEAGUES of Senator La Follette are having considerable fun with the senior senator from Wisconsin over the latter's proposal that the reiteration of a bill by congress shall make it a law despite a decision of the supreme court that it is unconstitutional. They quote the senator's oft repeated assertion that congress is a "tool of the interests," and inquire what he expects to gain by having a congress so corrupted override the supreme court.

The answer is simple enough. Those who feel that the supreme court can not be trusted to pass upon the constitutionality of an act will not be confused by the inquiry. They will say that it is not a cure-all, but that it would save from the "reactionary" tendencies of the supreme court such liberal legislation as the people are able to get through their "reactionary" congress.

However, it will be observed that such a law would work both ways. Should the supreme court declare unconstitutional a law detrimental to the public welfare passed by what chanced to be a congress controlled by "big business," this reactionary congress might foist it upon the public by overruling the supreme court.

No doubt those who agree with Senator La Follette would retort with the observation that, by and large, congress would be the more dependable because congressmen must go home for an accounting at the polls every two years.

To which, of course, the answer would be made that this is the essence of the objection, because then we would have political rather than legal decisions.

By all means the public should understand what it is all about. Friends of the La Follette idea, which is backed by organized labor, call it a congressional "veto." However, if we assume that the supreme court does not err in calling any given law unconstitutional, the power extended to congress is in very fact the power to amend the constitution.

Let us suppose a case: The supreme court declares a law unconstitutional. No question is raised that the court correctly interpreted the law. Congress admits that the law does conflict with the constitution. But congress believes the law is good, and does not want to await the slower process of amending the constitution in the regular way. Therefore it repasses the bill, which automatically becomes law despite its conflict with the constitution. Plainly, in such a case, congress has amended the constitution.

This granted, and the protest having arisen, Senator La Follette may set up the proposition that in England Parliament does that very thing, and indeed, in a much simpler way, because its acts are law regardless of any conflict with the English constitution. This seems to be the case. The public would like to hear from constitutional lawyers on the subject.

We'll all have to think of it. Regardless of how some or others of us are for or against it, Senator La Follette has raised a debatable question. It is England, to the core. But the English are a fixed type, like a thoroughbred stable. The English have as many conflicting economic views as have we, perhaps, but we who take our sinews from many lands can not have the homogeneity of thought about the nation that the English have. Centuries of fog and mutton have made them English first, and bankers or bricklayers afterward. A century and a half have not bound us by tradition against our hastier impulses. And yet we have the counsel that where democracy is ill the cure is more democracy. It's a big problem. It might mean the life or death of the republic.

Labor's View

WHAT labor wants in the way of constitutional amendments may not be clear in detail, but a brief synopsis shows that, broadly, it proposes constitutional prohibition of child labor, power of congress to veto supreme court decisions holding legislation unconstitutional, prohibition of anti-strike and anti-picketing legislation, and easier method of amending the constitution.

With the purposes of most, if not all of these proposed amendments the public probably will sympathize, but it seems improbable that a majority of Americans will approve the program as it is laid out by the labor convention.

There is no doubt that an amendment should be adopted under which congress' intent to restrict child labor can be made effective, but it should be possible to state a constitutional principle broad enough to cover this point without encumbering the constitution with what in effect is little more than a police regulation. This holds good of the proposed anti-strike and anti-picketing amendment.

Very largely the proposed amendments giving congress the veto power over the supreme court and making the constitution more easily amendable cover the same ground. It may be said that were both adopted, in case congress failed to veto a supreme court decision there would still be the chance of a constitutional amendment. This is true, of course, but one may ask whether it might not be too much of a good thing. For instance, might we not soon so clutter the constitution with laws that soon we should be hearing of "the multiplicitiy of constitutional amendments?"

On the whole, it would seem that one or the other of the proposed amendments to reach the constitution—easier amendment, or congressional veto—must fail. Whether the other should be adopted is a matter that the American people will study with extreme caution.

Stifling

WHAT was the hottest day you ever experienced? You might be interested to compare it with the temperature at Greenland Ranch in Death Valley, California, which the weather bureau announces is the hottest place in the United States and probably on earth. It is a cold summer when the thermometer there does not hover around 125 degrees in the shade. And the temperature got 9 degrees hotter than that on the record day, July 10, 1913. You have, since you were a child, been hearing about "hell on earth." The weather bureau seems to have found it in Death Valley.

If raised on a farm, you know that crops require at least 15 to 20 inches of rainfall a year, without irrigation aid. At Greenland Ranch, in Death Valley, rainfall averages less than two inches a year. The only nearby water is from springs. It comes up 100 degrees hot. Despite these handicaps, irrigation is carried on and four crops of alfalfa a year are raised on the 70 acres of Greenland Ranch.

A philosopher would see, in this, demonstration of man's ability to overcome any obstacles. The rest of us wonder why in tarnation any one wants to live in such a place, especially doing farm work.

In Ye Olden Times

TEN YEARS AGO TODAY

O. F. Goyten and A. A. Ort, engineers in the employ of Alvord & Burdick, the Chicago firm that has been engaged to install the new water system in La Crosse, arrived here this morning and immediately began the preliminary work on the construction of the plant. They inspected the field of their summer's work this morning and have already hired a large number of men and the work of building the giant reservoir on Grandad bluff will be begun before the end of the week.

A large bandstand and pavilion are to be built at Copeland park for the big Fourth of July celebration which is to be held here this year. Alderman Otto Gruble will put up the buildings. The pavilion will have a good floor and will be suitable for dancing. A feature of the program scheduled for the celebration is a boat race between Bob Henry and C. H. Blanchard.

Last evening at the First Presbyterian parsonage, Miss Ida Elizabeth Skalland and Mr. H. E. Schlicht were married, Rev. D. C. Jones performing the ceremony.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

The La Crosse and Black River Falls Railway company has decided to build a large dam at Black River Falls where the power house will be located for the operation of the road. The company will ask for a franchise at an early date but work on the line will not begin until next year.

Dr. Suiter has gone to Milwaukee to attend a meeting of the state board of health. Mrs. Suiter accompanied him.

The Fred Kroner Hardware company plans to move its wood rim plant from its present location on Jay street to the prairie where a new building will be erected. The present quarters will be occupied by the La Crosse Steel Roofing and Corrugating company.

C. E. Emery has placed two new cups at the drinking fountain on Cass street near his residence.

Mr. Nordal Nustad and Miss Julia Lysne were married last evening at the home of the bride's parents, 707 West Avenue South, Rev. A. K. Sagen performed the ceremony. The wedding was followed by a wedding supper and a reception.

THIRTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Warren D. Fox, who opened the Cameron House in La Crosse twelve years ago, has sold his interest to D. P. Smith, his partner. Mr. and Mrs. Fox will go to West Superior to make their home.

Col. and Mrs. F. H. Hankerson have returned from their wedding tour.

Miss Lily M. Berreson is home from Milwaukee where she graduated from the State Normal school last Wednesday.

Miss Libbie Metcalf has been chosen a member of the Division Council of the Wisconsin Ladies' Aid society which recently held its convention at Oshkosh. W. C. Winter was elected Judge Advocate.

This afternoon the board of public works awarded to the La Crosse Lumber company the contract for furnishing the city with pine slab, for fuel, their bid being $1.75 per cord. The other bidder was the P. S. Davidson company which offered slabs at $1.90 per cord. Last year the city bought slab for $1.30 per cord. The extreme scarcity is responsible for the increase in price.

The Way With Mildred

By JANE OSBORN

"I don't call that good salesmanship," sputtered Mrs. Brown, who had been employed in the ladies' dress department of Fordiker's for fifteen years. "Of course Mildred Dean makes sales. Never a day passes that she doesn't have two or three hundred dollars' worth of sales on her book. But that isn't good salesmanship—not the way she does it."

"Certainly not," agreed the angular Mrs. Drew, who crowded many diamond rings on her lean fingers in token of the fact that she had seen very much better days. "It's bad policy, I say, to get hold of people the way she does. She always spots a woman who wants to buy—seems to have second sight that way—and once she gets hold of them she makes them buy. Treats every one differently—just according to the way she thinks they want to be treated. With one it's 'Yes, ma'am,' and 'No, madam,' and 'Is there something more I can show you, madam?' and with the next customer it's 'Well, now wha' can I do for you little girl?' I call that sort of thing underhanded, I do. But then, that's the way with Mildred—she's kissed the blarney stone, all right."

There was a rustle from behind the rack lined with a rainbow array of new evening frocks that had formed a background for the two disgruntled saleswomen. They gave a startled look at each other and then faced Mildred Dean, the new eighteen-year-old saleswoman at Fordiker's, as she stepped into view.

"I am sorry," she said, "I didn't hear everything you said, but I heard a little. I think it's awfully helpful finding out what other people think about you—because it's sometimes so hard to discover your own faults."

"Well, we didn't mean to hurt your feeling, I'm sure," admitted the oldtimer, Mrs. Brown. "I've worked in this place long enough to know it doesn't do any good to start a row with other girls. But I'll tell you what I guess you ought to know. A lot of us girls are sore because you make so many more sales than we do. You pick all the customers who intend to buy and all we get is the women who are 'looking around.' I've broken my back today showing dresses to lookers and haven't made a single sale. It's second sight with you, I guess, knowing how to spot an honest-to-goodness customer."

"I'm sorry, really I am," stammered Mildred Dean. "I thought that we were all out to get the most sales we could without really interfering with each other." She paused. "I'll tell you what I'll do—after this I'll tell you when I see a woman that looks as if she meant to buy. And I'll take the leftovers. I'll just make it my business to wait on all the people you think are hopeless. I'm the newest girl in the department, so that wouldn't be unfair." This seemed like reasonable enough arrangement and Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Drew accepted it, not feeling that they were in the least imposing on Mildred Dean's good nature in so doing.

Several times that day Mildred made signs to one or the other of her associates, to indicate what she thought were buying possibilities in the women who were entering their department. However, Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Drew did not find these women any easier to convince than the ordinary, unescorted run of customers of others days.

It was in the middle of the following morning that a woman, strikingly tall and broad, steered her way into the department. Her clothes were shabby and bore the stamp of fashions long abandoned. And out to this, eyes that were sharp and piercing showed from behind thick lenses of magnifying glasses. A slender young man of about twenty was in her wake—obviously her son. Mrs. Brown looked at Mrs. Drew and shrugged her shoulders. Mrs. Drew snickered behind a hand raised to her mouth. Both looked at Mildred Dean.

"I guess she's yours," said Mrs. Drew to Mildred.

"She'll keep you all the rest of the morning and won't spend a nickel," was Mrs. Brown's comment.

"I don't agree with you," said Mildred. "I promised to turn over every customer who looks as if she'd buy. I think this woman is a good prospect. I'll take her if you want me to, but according to my agreement yesterday I shouldn't."

As neither of the two veteran saleswomen stepped forward Mildred advanced. More than ever before in her brief career as saleswoman she was at a loss to know just how to approach the prospective customer.

Obviously the woman was eccentric. Mildred did not let the fact that she had old-fashioned, ill-fitting clothes convince her that she did not intend to buy or that she was lacking funds.

"Is there something I can show you?" she asked, with one of her most engaging smiles.

The woman stood for a moment seemingly gazing at Mildred through the lenses of her heavy glasses; she said nothing and the young man at her side, judging his companion, answered. "Yes, she wants to see a coat or cape or something—something smart and snappy."

The slender young man beamed upon Mildred and the stout woman shot him an angry glance. On second sight she looked younger—perhaps she was actually the wife of the slight young man. At any rate, there was some friction between them whenever the young man looked approvingly at the young saleswoman, which he did frequently. Mildred came very near to being rattled. It was distinctly difficult to size up the woman under such circumstances.

However, she produced several wraps and cloaks of different styles and hung them on a clothes tree before a long pier glass.

"Don't you want to try them on?" she said. But the stout woman muttered that she did not.

"Capes seemed to be very becoming. You are tall enough to wear them." Obviously the stout woman liked flattery, for her expression appreciably softened, so Mildred tried again:

"It is such a pleasure to wait on any one with such a stunning figure—almost everything ought to look well."

The slender young man was appreciably annoyed.

The woman looked at the capes Mildred had brought out, or at least she went through the form of feeling of the texture of the material and holding them at arm's length.

"Say," she said, "I guess one of those will suit me. Now, what I want to do is to go in a fitting room to try them on." She shot a glance at the young man, who showed surprise at this turn in events.

"You'd hardly need to go in a fitting room to try on a cape," Mildred suggested.

"Nothing doing," agreed the young man.

"You butt out," snapped the woman. "I'm going in a fitting room to try on this cape and you're going to stay out. If I say he's to stay out he must, mustn't he?" she said turning to Mildred.

"Certainly," said Mildred, feeling as if she must be in a dream, so strange was the conduct of these uncouth customers. She led the way to a fitting room, carrying the two capes selected over her arm. The stately customer followed with the slender young man close in her wake. Mildred held the door open for the woman, entered herself, and very deftly shut the door in the young man's face, locking it after she had done so. Then she turned to the customer, whom she had apparently relieved from her annoying associate. To her dismay the customer had already taken off her hat with the veil attached. Next came a wig and then the thick-lensed spectacles.

"Billy Sneed," gasped Mildred, looking into the face of one of the halfbacks on the local college football team. She let the capes go dangling to the floor.

"How did you know I was Billy Sneed?"

"Haven't I been to every football game I could get to? Last year, before I started in here at Fordiker's when I was still in school, I used to go every Saturday during the season. I——"

"I guess, I've seen you there," said the customer, now stepping out of skirt and suit coat to reveal a stalwart young man in soft shirt and knickers. "Now see here!—I want you to help me out of this mess. I've been bid to one of the senior societies and this is my initiation. The young fellow out there—Tom Gleason—is putting me through my paces. I was ordered to dress as a woman and come here to buy a coat.

"Some of the boys at college, I guess, had seen you and knew you worked here and thought it would fuss me to have you wait on me. That's why Tom Gleason steered right for you instead of any of those old hens.

"But I played a trick on him when I asked to come into a fitting room. Shrewd, I call it. Now what I want you to do is to make a bundle of these clothes of mine then let me slip out of that window."

Billy Sneed had peered out of the window and saw that it was only a drop of a single story to the roof below. From that room he could doubtless come to a escape. At all events he could evade the vigilance of his guardian, Tom Gleason, and if he did that he would have won the privilege of entering the coveted membership of the senior society without further hazing.

Mildred bundled the discarded clothes. With Billy's assistance she stuffed them into the cavernous interior of a lay figure in the fitting room and then stood it up again so that no one could suspect the uses to which it had been put. Then she opened the window, just as a loud rapping sounded at the door.

"Do be careful," said Mildred, as Billy swung out on the window sill and looked for a foothold on the coping below.

"You little brick," said Billy, and as he leaped to the roof below and ran toward a fire escape at the edge he had the audacity to throw back a kiss.

Then Mildred opened the door and admitted Tom Gleason and Mrs. Brown.

"Where is my wife?" said Tom Gleason. "She came into this room with you."

"Yes, but she has just left. She left word that she would meet you later. It's strange that you didn't see her."

Six months later Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Drew were discussing the vagaries of their daily work at Fordiker's.

"It's funny about some people," said Mrs. Brown. "Now there's that Mildred Dean. Not such a very pretty girl, according to my taste. And now she's gone and married Billy Sneed, son of William Sneed, the millionaire. Billy's graduated and married her the next day. Now how in the world do you suppose she ever met him—working every day in the store here? I never have any chance to meet young men and I'm sure I don't see how she managed it."

And the way that Mildred Dean did meet Billy Sneed always remained a mystery save to Mildred Dean and Billy and Tom Gleason.

OUT OUR WAY

BY WILLIAMS

AUTOMOBILE BUSINESS ON FIRMER BASIS

SAYS BABSON

WELLESLEY HILLS, Mass.—In discussing the general situation for the week Roger W. Babson, the statistician, today made the following analysis of the Automobile industry.

"Many persons have been surprised at the recent rebound in the automobile industry and in the price of automobile securities. Those, however, who have been carefully watching the situation are not surprised. The price cut in automobiles developed new buying; the extension of the good roads movement increased the point of saturation; and the reduction in the cost of tires and general supplies encouraged more people to use cars. The man who has never had any car now drives one; and the man who was content with one car now has two or three. No, the saturation point has not yet been reached. Moreover, as our system of good roads is extended, this saturation point is pushed further and further away. The saturation point for automobiles in this country will not be reached until our system of highways has been completed and perfected.

"The great factor, however, which is today making business for the automobile companies is the silent and insistent purchasing of "parts" by the present users of cars. People have no idea of the tremendous business today in automobile parts. It is generally estimated that about ten billion dollars is invested in automobiles and their accessories. It is further estimated that a man spends about five percent a year on repairs and that a large proportion of this for new parts. This means that from three hundred to four hundred million dollars of automobile business per year exists in the manufacture and sale of new parts for cars already sold. Not only is this a large amount of money, but there is as much net profit in this business as in double or treble the same amount of automobile business. If you have any doubt of this take the "parts" catalog for any car and add up what it would cost to buy all the parts of the car separately. Not only are the companies getting high prices for these parts, but there is practically no expense connected with the selling of these parts. When buying a complete car I may buy from any one of a hundred companies, but when buying a part to one of my present cars I must buy of the company which manufactures the car. Sale of these parts is bringing into the older companies a tremendous income.

"Investors will therefore see that the automobile business has graduated from the experimental stage and has become a great settled industry, at least so far as the older company is concerned. The good will asset of every business should increase as years go on, provided it manufactures honestly a useful product. The older automobile companies, however, possess the additional asset; of being able to sell parts for existing cars. Many of these companies could pay their dividends, certainly their preferred dividends, from the profits from sale of parts. If Ford did not manufacture another car, he could do a tremendous business for years to come in manufacturing parts for the cars already sold. If the saturation point is ever reached in the automobile business, the profits from the replacements of machines and the sale of parts will still be tremendous.

"Of course, new automobile companies do not possess this asset. Hence, conservative men purchase only the stocks of the older and more stable concerns. Wise investors also look carefully to the capitalization. Before buying an automobile stock, divide the capitalization by the annual output both in cars and in dollars. Certain popular makes of cars are over capitalized, and certain companies with small outputs have very conservative capitalization. Therefore, one should consider both the output and the capitalization. Neither factor by itself is sufficient in judging an automobile stock.

"I want to emphasize particularly" concluded Mr. Babson, "the fact that the automobile industry is today a permanent industry and that the securities of the standard automobile companies should rank with those of the steel companies. Moreover, in view of the foreign competition which the steel companies will soon have—I should even be inclined to sell certain steel securities and invest the proceeds in seasoned automobile stocks."

In spite of strikes actual and threatened—general business is holding its own. The index of the Babson chart shows activities at seventeen percent below normal. The same as last week.

LA CROSSE TRACTOR BUSINESS IS PROBED BY A STATE BOARD

Violation of Blue Sky Law Alleged in Sale of Stock in Oshkosh Company

DIRECTORS ARE INVOLVED ACCORDING TO COMPLAINT

Over One Hundred Witnesses Have Been Examined

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

A group of 170 stockholders of the Oshkosh Tractor company, represented by George E. Williams, Oshkosh attorney, have brought a complaint to the "blue sky" division of the state railroad commission for the return of funds invested in the corporation that is expected to result in a constitutional test of certain provisions of the law which was revised by the 1921 legislature.

This is the first case under this new section of the law, which empowers the railroad commission after due hearing and investigation to issue orders for complete restitution to stockholders. The large number of persons involved, the state-wide prominence of some of the defendants, the fact that the hearing on the case before the securities department has been in process for four weeks and the possibility of the constitutional test have made the case one of the most important considered by the commission in years.

Charges Against Directors

Among the directors who are charged with improprieties in the complaint filed with the commission are the names of George A. West, Milwaukee for years chairman of the state central republican committee, I. G. Hickman, La Crosse, W. G. Collar, L. W. Melcher, A. D. Paine, and James C. Casey.

Attorneys representing the defendants are George Hudnall, Milwaukee executive counsel for former governor E. L. Philipp and M. B. Olbrich, executive counsel for Governor Blaine.

Among the charges enumerated by the complainants against the promoters and directors are: that instead of making money the La Crosse Tractor company, which it is claimed was owned by the Oshkosh corporation, has suffered a net loss of many thousands of dollars and that this fact was well known at the time an application for a permit was made to the securities division. The application it is said in the complaint showed a net profit for the year 1919 of $1185.99.

That this false representation as to the net profits was made to the commission for the purpose of obtaining a permit for the sale of the capital stock of the company it is alleged in the complaint.

Further that the full 50 per cent subscribed stock that is required before the company can sell stock had not been sold. Also that the board of directors voted shares of stock without any consideration being received by the company.

Charges are also preferred against the International Mercantile Securities company who had a contract, it is claimed, to sell $1,000,000 of preferred stock of the company. It is claimed that the company sold this stock on false representations made by its agents among which are enumerated that the assets of the company were three times the authorized issue of stock, that the plant at La Crosse had been running day and night and could not catch up with its orders and that the plant was being moved to Oshkosh for that reason and also that the stock was the same as a mortgage and that the railroad commission would look after the company the same as the state looks after a state bank.

Mr. Hudnall during the course of the hearing raised the question of the constitutionality of the provision which authorizes the railroad commission to order repayment of money on stock purchases. Mr. Olbrich also one of the defense attorneys advised the commission that he would not raise that issue.

Over 100 witnesses have appeared before the commission and testified at the hearing regarding stock purchases. It is claimed that $58,000 has been paid in on stock purchases and many thousands more sold on notes.

TRANSIT COMPANY BARGE STARTS ON UP RIVER TRIP

The River Transit company's packet barge No. 1 left La Crosse on its second up-river trip Sunday, carrying a consignment of freight from La Crosse shippers to up-river cities. It is planned to make one and possibly two round trips a week.

According to a statement of the company the barge will carry freight for about 25 per cent under railroad rates.

MONOPOLY DESTROYS OPPORTUNITY SAYS STATE MARKET MAN

Commissioner of Markets, Edward Nordman, Issues Statement Monday

MADISON, Wis.—The elimination of evils resulting from the monopolies of natural resources, transportation and credit should be the rallying point for all those whose interests lie in the normal functioning of the market, declares Edward Nordman, commissioner of markets in a statement issued today. These monopolies destroy opportunity, decrease the purchasing power of the consumer and cause periodical business and industrial depression.

It is the belief of Mr. Nordman that the methods used hitherto to fight the evils resulting from monopolies have not remedied the situation or have at best given results of little significance. It is worthy of note, he states further, that attempts to destroy monopolies have been vainly made for many years past. Thus thirty years ago the American people, striving to curb the gigantic industrial and business combines, had passed the Sherman anti-trust act which had for its purpose the abolition of combinations "in restraint of trade."

"Long and painful litigation followed. After many years these giant organizations emerged stronger than before. If broken up at all it was only on paper. In spite of tremendous outcry, in spite of prosecutions and dissolutions there monopolistic combinations are as powerful as ever and every legal attempt at curbing their power shows conclusively that present day methods of dealing with them are utterly impotent.

Bread Monopolies

"The time has come when more effective methods should be adopted to deal with the evil effects of monopolies. Merely breaking them up legally or curbing their power on paper will not do. They will simply reappear under different names without any change in substance. The old methods should be discarded and other ones dealing with these evils in a fundamental way should be applied. Until this is done and until people get down to brass tacks and concentrate their efforts on basic and fundamental remedies conditions will not improve to the extent of establishing permanently good and stable markets.

Fair Prices and Wages Needed

The first and basic condition of good markets and economic prosperity is fair prices for goods and fair returns for services. Unfair and unjust compensation, whether in the form of low prices or low wages, reduces the consumer's purchasing power thereby causing markets to be glutted with unsalable goods and producing periodical business depressions. Fair prices and just wages, however, cannot be established by arbitrary action. The only way to bring them about is to open up opportunities thus enabling the producing elements of society to apply their energies to the most productive and remunerative tasks in both distribution and production. This can be done only by releasing the natural resources, by means of taxation, from the hold of monopolists and speculators and by making other monopolies, not founded upon private ownership of natural resources, serve the common interests rather than those of private individuals.

In conclusion Mr. Nordman stated that the trouble in the past was that the importance of these fundamental remedies has not been clearly perceived and that the people have let themselves be diverted to the consideration of superficial remedies and have lost track of the real and vital problems involved.

The North Western

CONFIDENCE IN AMERICA

Confidence of men in American institutions has brought prosperity to the American people.

The greatest institution of this country is its transportation system. The very life of this nation depends on the efficiency of its railroads.

The Chicago and North Western Railway Company is proud of the fact that the efficiency and loyalty of its employes has enabled the North Western to satisfactorily discharge its transportation obligations to the public.

Any disturbance to the discharge of the North Western's duty to the public would seriously retard the recovery of business from its long period of depression.

The Chicago and North Western Railway Company recognized the necessity of adjusting the disturbed conditions under which we are living. It voluntarily made many reductions in freight rates and accepted the reductions ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The North Western also accepted —without question—the increase of wages ordered by the Railroad Labor Board.

We believe that North Western employes should show the same willingness as the Company to abide by the orders of the Railroad Labor Board.

This adjustment is fair. After the reduction ordered by the Labor Board, North Western employes will be paid a higher scale than labor in other industries.

The reductions in rates of grain, hay and other commodities that were made effective January 1, 1922, together with the reductions effective July 1, 1922, reduces our income—based on our 1921 business—by $13,900,000.

The reduction in wages ordered by the Railroad Labor Board effective July 1, 1922, reduces our expenses —based on 1921 payrolls — by $4,100,000.

A strike by North Western employes against the decision of the Railroad Labor Board will not only destroy at once the confidence which the years have given the North Western in its employes, but it will be a strike against this country's progress toward prosperity.

We believe that North Western employes will continue their faith in American institutions and let right and wisdom govern their actions.

BRITISH EXPEDITION GIVES UP EFFORT TO SCALE MT. EVEREST

Attempt Will Only End in Useless Tragedy is Conclusion Reached by Leader

LONDON. — By The Associated Press.—Mount Everest has again baffled the best efforts of man.

The Colorado correspondent of the Daily Telegraph Monday confirms previous reports that Brig.-Gen. C. G. Bruce, head of the present expedition, has been forced to the conclusion that persistence in the effort to scale the peak would only result in useless tragedy.

The authoritative view in India is that if any expedition started earlier in the season it might be barely possible to reach within a thousand feet of the top, but that the last lap could only be covered by almost superhuman effort under unprecedentedly favorable weather conditions and by men who faced the certainty that they would never return.

It is amazing what can be accomplished when everybody pulls together. That's the way mountains are moved. But there is more in it than mere physical power—it's the spirit that is aroused by unity. You can hold a town back when its people decide to do a thing—and then do it.

The Chamber of Commerce is the very starting point of such movements—the cement as it were that binds men and methods together.

It's very difficult for a few to hold back when the majority are smiling and saying: "Come on—we're invincible."

Towns, like people, are apt to "get in a rut."

What does "getting in a rut" mean?

It means letting fairly good-enough alone—being content with what has gone before—complacently and smugly settling back into precedence. It means struggling along with the same schools and factories and roads and city policies regardless of whether they are progressive or not.

But that won't do.

These are spirited times. If a town or a community begins to retrograde, the down-town plunge is swift and sure. Both worthwhile men and worthwhile business move elsewhere.

Grab the rope—yank a bit with your strength and your initiative and pride. It doesn't take very long for a Chamber of Commerce to work miracles in a town.

THE EMPLOYES of the Martin Brothers' company had a most enjoyable time last Friday evening on French Island. About seventy-five or eighty of their force and friends went in autos to Steves' place. The young ladies of the factory and office had preceded, when Mr. Martin and his office force and salesmen and their wives had arrived. Supper was served by the young ladies. After the meal speeches were in order. Captain R. carried the honors for the best talk. He spoke of the need of being better acquainted, more interested in our fellow workers and a better understanding of and interest in the management of a large business.

Con. S. was next, but being very bashful, was only able to praise the girls for their excellent meal and their splendid appearance.

JEALOUSY IS CAUSE OF DOUBLE TRAGEDY AT KENOSHA SUNDAY

Crazed Suitor Shoots and Kills Girl and then Commits Suicide

KENOSHA, Wis.—Crazed by jealousy, Alexander Lewandowski, aged 33, late Sunday night shot and killed his sweetheart, Miss Josephine Kordazewski, aged 24, and then after running a short distance from the scene of the crime, turned the gun upon himself and committed suicide.

Sunday afternoon Lewandowski had told the girl when she refused to marry him that "they would soon meet in heaven." Sunday evening when she left the park with two other men, whom she had summoned for protection, he followed them, shooting the girl in the back of the head while the three were walking on Racine avenue. He then ran several hundred yards and when pursued by the others shot himself through the right temple. He was dead when they reached him.

SMOKING INVOLVES MANNERS NOT MORALS SAYS MADISON WOMAN

MADISON, Wis.—That it is manners rather than morals involved in the habits of the present day girls is the belief of Mrs. M. B. Rosenberry, formerly dean of women at the university here.

"Of smoking by girls, wrong dancing, immodest dress, and so forth it is not a question of morals but of taste and manners," declared Mrs. Rosenberry. "There are certain things not done, that is all, by the people of taste and breeding. Manners, however, are often close to ideals. One of the student weaknesses is seeing only blacks and whites and no grays."

STATE INVESTIGATES SHORTAGE OF MILLION IN FIRM'S ACCOUNTS

Hearing Held to Determine Whether Company's Permit to Sell Stock is to be Revoked

MADISON, Wis.—Deficits amounting to $1,040,069 are claimed to exist in accounts of the William Seylor investment company by an audit submitted at the hearing before the railroad commission Monday to determine whether the permit of the company to sell stock in Wisconsin should be revoked.

The shortage is shown by the audit in accounts of the Elbucan Oil company with an alleged deficit of $326,522 and the M. T. C. company with a deficit said to be $877,547. Over three million shares of stock in these companies sold by the Seylor company at $1.00 a share are said to be outstanding.

This audit the company attacked as unfair and made by persons incompetent to audit affairs of an oil company. It is claimed that $300,000 paid in commissions has been charged against a single year's account when it should have been spread over ten years. Certain assets the company claims have been written off the books when they are tangible and of value.

The hearing room of the state capitol was filled with persons interested in the proceedings when the hearing opened at ten o'clock.

BRITISH GOVERNMENT CALLED TO ACCOUNT ON IRISH ATTITUDE

Called Upon Monday to Face Storm in Parliament Roused by Wilson Assassination

ATTACK GOVERNMENT FOR NOT PROTECTING ITS PUBLIC MEN

Funeral Services for Late Field Marshal Held in London Today

LONDON—By The Associated Press. —After the funeral Monday of Field Marshal Sir Henry Wilson, the government expected to face in parliament the storm aroused against it by the great soldier's assassination. The alleged failure of the government to protect men in public life is only one of the charges its opponents were to bring against the administration, back of this being the anger of one section of the house toward the Irish policy.

Previous attempts to call the government to order on the latter count failed to produce effect its enemies desired, but the present attack is more menacing in that it has deeply stirred the emotions of a great many of the members.

Want Free Debate

Winston Spencer Churchill, secretary of the colonies, rising to make his promised statement on Irish affairs in the house of commons, said the government desired the freest and fullest debate and one that could be terminated by a division.

Mr. Churchill declared he did not hesitate to say that all the horrors that had occurred in Belfast were due to the organization in that territory of two divisions of Irish republican army and the continuous efforts of partisans of the south to break down the Ulster government and force Ulster against her will to come under the rule of Dublin.

The colonial secretary said the imperial government had supplied the northern Irish government with 50,000 troops for its defense. He added that the northern government would be supported effectively and at all costs in any attempt that might be made to coerce it into submission to the south.

To Resist Drive on Ulster

The Sinn Fein, Mr. Churchill said, had to realize that they would never win Ulster except by her own free will and that the more they kicked the worse it would be for them. He said the imperial government would endeavor to stand between the antagonists and prevent the loss of life and destruction of property, and by so doing make it absolutely clear that any attempt from southern forces to break into the territory of northern Ireland would be met and repulsed by imperial power.

"The imperial government," said Mr. Churchill, "feels that after the election, which clearly showed what were the wishes of the Irish people, we cannot continue to tolerate the many grave lapses of the spirit of the treaty and the improprieties and irregularities in its execution which we have put up with or acquiesced in during the last six months."

City Honors Wilson

Thousands of Londoners Monday paid tribute to the late Field Marshal Sir Henry H. Wilson, victim of assassins. For four hours they stood in a drizzling rain to watch the solemn procession making its way from the marshal's late home in Eaton place to St. Paul's cathedral.

St. Paul's square had never held so many people since the funeral of King Edward in 1910 while outside Sir Henry's home as the procession started a great multitude had assembled, former officers and soldiers being conspicuous among them.

Throughout the city all flags were half-mated and many shops were closed to permit employes to witness the funeral. Throughout the empire the day was one of national mourning, from far off New Zealand coming word that minute guns would be fired during the funeral and all flags half-mast.

In Northern Ireland, the home of the slain soldier, there were special manifestations of grief and memorial services were held in most of the churches.

Return Murder Verdict

A verdict of wilful murder against James Connelly and James O'Brien was returned Monday afternoon by the coroner's jury in the inquest into the killing of Field Marshal Sir Henry Hughes Wilson, assassinated last Thursday. The accused men who were arrested immediately after the crime, did not attend the hearing on advice of counsel.

MRS. HANNAH KELLY NAMED DELEGATE TO DEMOCRATIC MEET

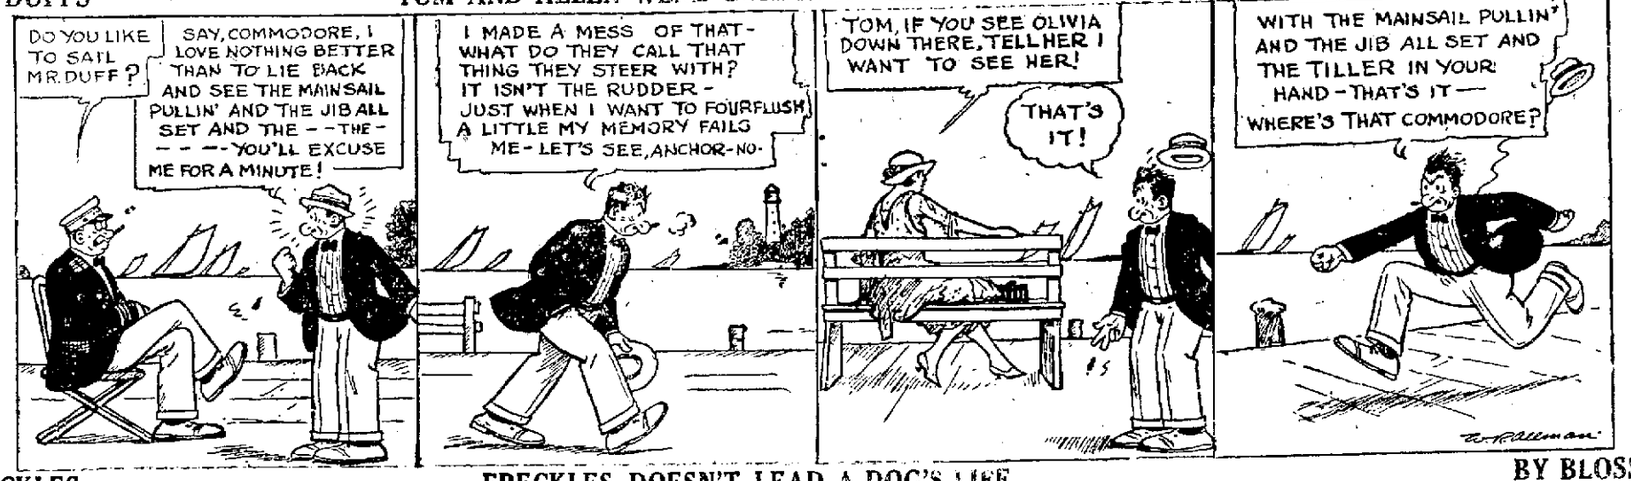

Mrs. Hannah Kelly, 728 Gould street, has been named a delegate from La Crosse county to the state democratic conference at Milwaukee on Tuesday. There will be a meeting Monday night at the Hotel Pfister, which probably will be attended by La Crosse delegates who left for Milwaukee Monday morning. The sheriff asserted he was hurrying to return to his office anticipating a telephone call in connection with official business.

BERTON BRALEY'S DAILY POEM

FOUNDATIONS
BY BERTON BRALEY

With pick and drill and dynamite
The workmen labor, day and night,
To build, on everlasting rock,
Foundations proof against each shock.
They dig and delve beneath the soil
Yet, to the passerby, their toil
Appears, somehow, of little worth—
Merely a deep hole in the earth!

Then, overnight—or so it seems—
High in the air a structure gleams,
And many-storied towers rise
In strength and beauty to the skies.
For once the strong foundation's laid
Full swiftly all the rest is made.
And thus we watch it lift and grow
Based on the work that doesn't show.

With men it's oftentimes the same,
They lift themselves to sudden fame,
Or it seems sudden—till we find
What toil of body and of mind,
What years of struggle and of stress
Have laid foundations for success.
For when that work is done at last
The superstructure rises fast.

CAMP MUSIC
BY BERTON BRALEY

There's the lapping of the water on a white and sandy beach,
There's the sighing of the breezes in the trees,
There's the song of frogs in chorus, there's the night owl's sudden screech,
But I know a music sweeter far than these;
For there's nothing half so dulcet to a hungry camping clan
As the sizzle of the bacon in the pan!

Though the "chunkin" of a paddle is a music good to hear,
It's a harmony that's wearisome to make;
You may slip through pleasant waters that are marvelously clear
But the exercise will make your muscles ache;
So the sound of dipping paddles never could compare, or can,
With the sizzle of the bacon in the pan!

When the twilight shades have fallen and the fire is burning bright
And you've finished with your travel for the day,
And you're waiting for your dinner with an outdoor appetite,
That's the time the bacon-music comes in play;
It's a melody with magic to assuage the tuner man,
Is the sizzle of the bacon in the pan!

Dawn or twilight, breakfast, dinner, it's a melody sublime,
It's a harmony the dullest can enjoy,
And it makes your palate tickle and your heart beat faster time
As your eyes and nostrils warn you, "Food, ahoy!"
It's the pinnacle of music to the true-blue nature fan,
Is the sizzle of the bacon in the pan,
Oh, man!
The bacon sizzling gaily in the pan!

In answer to Lord Roberts' question the premier said: "This is not a question which concerns Great Britain alone, it primarily concerns Germany itself. So far as his majesty's government is concerned we would support a proposal to admit Germany to the league."

CIRCUMSTANTIAL ONLY

On the complaint of a farmer, old Ephraim had been haled into court charged with chicken shooting. His lawyer had made a fairly good case for him and for a clincher had the plaintiff recalled, hoping to make him contradict his own testimony.

"So here," he said, scowling savagely, "will you swear that it was Ephraim who shot your chicken?"

"Wal," said the farmer mildly, "I won't swear to it, but I suspect him."

"That's not enough to convict a man. What makes you suspect him?"

"Wal, I saw him in the chicken yard with a gun, then I heard the gun go off, and then I saw him putting the chicken into a bag—and it didn't somehow seem sensible to figger the bird committed suicide."—American Legion Weekly.

FARRINGTON APPEAL TO ILLINOIS MINERS FOR AID IN CHECING DISORDERS

the mine, was buried. Five thousand miners marched behind a band in his funeral cortege and 115 automobiles brought up the rear.

Question Timekeeper

The state and federal investigators worked far into the night following clues which have reached them. At 1 o'clock Monday morning they visited the Herrin hospital to question Allen P. Findlay, Chicago timekeeper for the detective agency which supplied the twenty-six mine guards. Findlay was in the front rank when the mob marched its victims into the death woods and fell at the first volley with forty-six shotgun pellets in his side. As he lay on the ground a miner with a revolver fired a shot point-blank through his foot.

Findlay told the investigators and Colonel S. N. Hunter, Illinois National guard, that he could recognize the leader of the execution squad, and gave a partial description of an elderly gray-haired man who took Superintendent McDowell from the ranks before the wood was reached and killed him.

Superintendent Returned Fire

Findlay testified at the coroner's inquest that McDowell shot at two men on Wednesday, during the first attack on the mine and that he saw one crumple up and the other throw up his hands and fall. The coroner's jury decided from his description that one of the two was a miner named Henderson and so found McDowell responsible for his death.

The timekeeper told the investigators that snipers attacked the mine about noon on Wednesday and kept up a more or less fire until about 3 o'clock when McDowell, seeing the two men on a hillside a quarter of a mile away, shot them with a high-powered rifle.

Winona ..... 100 030 002—4

Summary: Three base hits—Dresser. Stolen base—Beranek. Struck out—By Schultz, 11; by Hier, 2. Base on balls—Off Schultz, 2; off Hier, 4.

LEFTY HIER and his teammates of the Winonas made good their claim of "Beat La Crosse" on the occasion of their second meeting at Athletic park Sunday afternoon when the Nelsons were brought down to a score of 4 to 1 in a battle filled with exciting circumstances and sensational plays.

True to what was expected, the "emery ball" figured in the attack of the visiting hurler. Protests of Manager Sarsfield failed to curb the practice of mutilating the ball with the result that one was deliberately batted over the stand by Schultz.

One Apiece

The defeat of Satch's tribe Sunday afternoon placed the two teams at an even break in games this season, the locals winning 2 to 1 at Winona last week. Hier's effectiveness coupled with a walk, timely hitting and two costly errors in the ninth inning, during which Stoneman was injured forcing him to retire from the game, gave the undoing of the local club yesterday. Scoring one in the first, the visitors put over an additional three in the final round at bat which nailed the victory beyond the power of the locals to redeem.

In spite of the effectiveness of Hier, who caused fifteen of the Nelsons to strike at the plate, the locals fought gamely to the end and threatened even in the ninth inning to make up the loss when Beranek, for the second time in the game, started off by beating down a bunt and beating the throw to first. He stole second and advanced to third on a wild pitch at second, scoring on Schaffer's single. Smith pound Lout to center, Wolf struck out and Satch ended the game by giving Olson an out in left field in third chance.

Dielke Triples

A three base hit by Dielke after Dresser had singled resulted in the first score for the visitors in the initial inning. In the meantime until the ninth inning, when a walk, two hits and two errors permitted the Winona three scores, it was a battle in which the locals played for every thing in sight to overcome the lead. In the second inning, Beranek beat out his first bunt with a pretty slide, but was caught in attempting second, which followed with a walk, but was nipped by the same route. Again in the fifth he was given a free pass, took second and was out on his attempt to third on a passed ball at the plate.

In the ninth, Hier started with a walk. Ostrum grounded to Shields who legged wild for the runner at second and both were safe. Ritter's only single scored Schaffer on a force by throwing Ostrum out at home on Fiesler's grounder. Ritter scored when Stoneman threw for Sadler at second. Stoneman was injured and forced to retire in favor of Olson of the day. Rose grounded out and Prosser's single scored Fiedler. Olson struck out.

Sherdel's Good Pitching Helps St. Louis Put Over Victory

ST. Louis.—An avalanche of hits by the Cardinals buried the Cubs under an 11 to 1 score on Sunday. The Chicago team showed a complete reversal of form and their fielding was far from good. This combined with Sherdel's excellent pitching and the St. Louis team's hitting accounted for the overwhelming defeat. Fournier and Smith were the home run hitters. Score:

HOLMES LOST TO BADGER GRID SQUAD FOR NEXT SEASON AFTER ACTION OF FACULTY COMMITTEE

BY BOB DUNN

Wisconsin received its first blow of the year in football with the opening of the summer session in the certain loss to the squad of Harold Holmes of Idaho, veteran from Richards' squad of two years ago and stellar member of the All-Americans of last fall.

Two years ago Holmes' playing stood out as equal, if not superior, to the work of Elliot and on the second eleven last fall he was the linkwork of the backfield.

Holmes was not eligible for play last fall but has been giving every effort in an attempt to make the scholastic grades in order to assure himself of a place in the backfield this season.

Throughout the winter Holmes has been paying special attention to his scholastic work but at the same time has been keeping himself in perfect physical condition. Although wider light two years ago, he has succeeded in building his weight up to 180 solid pounds of muscle with very little, if any, excess weight.

Holmes has been training constantly under Coach Richards' direction for it was the plan of the Badger mentor to develop the Williams-Holmes combination this fall into an aggressive offensive that would equal, and perhaps surpass, anything that the conference produced last season.

The final action on Holmes' case has just been taken with the meeting of several faculty members who are also members of the executive board of the athletic department. The committee consists of several deans in addition to the dean of men and the dean of women.

Following the session on which action was taken on Holmes' case, a prominent, Madison alumnus, also an ex-varsity athlete, wired Holmes telling him that it would not be worth while for him to report to school for the summer session for it would not be possible for him to make up the necessary work during that time in view of the action taken by the faculty committee.

As result Holmes will not report for summer school and probably abandon his Wisconsin football plans for the fall, although there remains just a faint chance of his being able to make the grade, a chance, however, which the coaches are not considering in branding the case as now hopeless.

Holmes was raised in Idaho but has spent all his college days at Wisconsin where his father starred in football many years ago when Coach John Richards wore a Cardinal uniform.

Although Holmes' major sport is football, he has also been prominent in wrestling at Madison. During his freshman year he won his class wrestling championship and the next year won honors in boxing in the intramural boxing contests.

SELECTION OF "LANDIS" OF BIG TEN CONFERENCE RESTS WITH COACH JONES, WISCONSIN

By BOB DUNN

The selection of a man to act as the "Landis" of Big Ten conference sports in enforcing rules against professionalism and similar regulations of the mid-western institutions rests largely with Coach Tom E. Jones, athletic director at the University of Wisconsin.

The conference has already formally decided to select such a man to act as arbiter and Coach Jones is chairman of the committee to do the selecting. Coach Yost of Michigan and St. John of Ohio State are the other members of the committee but it is reported that the selection rests largely with Jones of Wisconsin.

Three men are being considered for the post, according to Coach Jones. They are Fred Young of Bloomington, Illinois, Elmer Barry of Springfield college and Major Griffith of the University of Illinois.

It appears that the choice will narrow down to Young and Barry although Chicago papers have conceded the appointment to Griffith. The majority of the Big Ten schools favor the appointment of somebody outside of the conference.

Young is a popular Big Ten referee. He refereed most of Wisconsin's basketball games during the past season and many of the football contests. Barry on the other hand, has had no association with the Big Ten. He is at present connected with Springfield college in the east, where they turn out athletic coaches.

It is known that Barry is a strong supporter of the amateur rule.

FORDS WIN FROM DAKOTA ON SUNDAY BY SCORE OF 3-1

Winning Scores Are Tallied by Locals After the Sixth Inning

In one of the best exhibitions of baseball ever witnessed at Dakota, Dahl's Fords defeated the strong Dakota team 3 to 1, Sunday. Six La Crescent players were with the Dakota aggregation.

The game was close throughout, the Dakotas holding the lead, 1 to 0, until the seventh inning, when Christopher came in on Groth's hit. In the eighth inning the Fords scored another when Sleege came in on Voss' hit. The last inning the locals scored again, which left the score 3 to 1 in favor of the Fords.

According to the new schedule the Dahl's Fords play Wile Bros. at Hixon Field this evening.

Next Sunday the Fords will meet the strong Onalaska Spinning Mills team on the latter's diamond. The Dahl's Fords have been the most successful amateur team in the city so far, having played thirteen games without a loss.

The St. Louis Browns blanked the Detroit Tigers, 5 to 0, and evened the four game series.

WHISKAWAY STANDS TODAY AS KING OF THE AMERICAN TURF

Defeats Two Most Prominent Rivals, Morvich and Pillory, at Latonia

NEW YORK.—Whiskaway, Harry Payne Whitney's sensational colt, stands today as the acknowledged king of three-year-olds on the American turf. The sturdy of Whiskbroom II, decisively defeated his two most prominent rivals—Morvich, winner of the Kentucky Derby, and Pillory, victor in the rich Preakness and Belmont stakes, in the first running of the $50,000 special at Latonia Saturday. The winner was given his hardest test in the final drive by Thibodaux, a rank outsider who was only half length behind at the finish.

The Whitney horse was ten lengths ahead of Morvich, which finished third, while Pillory made a disappointing showing and never was dangerous.

PARIS.—Koefaling won the Grand Prix with Ramus second and Algerian third.

MONTAGUES LOSE TO CASHTON, 8-1; GAMES EVENED UP

Fourth Game With Cashton Gives Teams Two Wins Each

The Montague baseball club Sunday afternoon lost to Cashton, 8 to 1, giving the teams two games each in the series of four games to date. Bradley, new hurler secured by the Cashton club was effective, holding the locals to five hits, while Gunderson was touched for ten, three of which went for an extra base. Safford, Temp and Franzini clouted two-base hits off Bradley.

For the attraction here next Sunday the Montague club has booked Viroqua, Hastings, who has done the most of Viroqua's hurling this season, will no doubt expose Gunderson in the game.

Serving a Food Empire With Petroleum

IN maintaining its extended and thoroughly organized system of distribution, which reaches every farm in the 10 Middle Western States served, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is rendering a distinct service, not to the agricultural district interests alone, but to all the people.

The importance of this service may be visualized when it is known that

48% of the wheat
65% of the oats
53% of the corn
41% of the hay

grown in the United States during 1921 came from this territory.

The farmers of this great area (approximating that of Great Britain and Ireland, France, Spain, Portugal, Italy, Holland, Denmark and Germany combined) use large quantities of petroleum products in producing this vast amount of food stuffs.

They have come to depend upon the regular visit of the dark green tank wagon of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) to supply their needs.

Power-driven machinery is essential to modern farming operations, and it is the responsibility of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) to see to it that the gasoline, kerosene, and lubricating oils and other petroleum products are in the hands of the farmer when he needs them.

To render this service requires an enormous organization of highly trained men under efficient management. It requires a tremendous capital investment; refineries; bulk service stations; tank wagons; and service stations to cope with the need of supplying an agricultural area of the size and importance of these 10 Middle Western States.

In undertaking the responsibility of supplying the needs of the farmer for petroleum products, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has assumed a job of magnitude and importance.

Because it knows that its organization will not break down under stress; that its facilities will enable them to meet the demands made upon it; that its personnel has a deep interest in seeing that every manufacturing and distributing schedule is maintained, the Company is able to guarantee an adequate and sustained service.

SUCCESS OF TOBACCO POOL IN VERNON COUNTY CERTAIN AFTER FRIDAY'S MEETING

Tobacco Growers of Viroqua District Hear Interesting Talk by Charles Marvin, Kentucky Expert; Quota of District Nearly Completed

Three thousand persons were present at the mass meeting of the tobacco growers and business men of the Viroqua district, held in the Viroqua city park Friday night. Mr. Charles Marvin, of Louisville, Ky., one of the organizers and most interested members of the Burley Tobacco pool of that state, addressed the meeting, explaining in detail the economic side of the pool and the advantages which come to the grower through co-operative marketing of his crops.

With the final check-up on the lists not yet complete, it was stated Friday night by Sam Neprud of Viroqua, local chairman of the tobacco pool association, that practically all of the required 75 per cent of the growers in his district had signed up, but that the drive is to be continued until the end of the month, with the idea of signing up every single acre of tobacco in this section of the country in the pool. There are about 6,000 acres of tobacco raised in the Viroqua district. With the returns still incomplete it was stated that more than 1350 growers have signed the five year contracts.

Farmers who have already signed contracts are working among their neighbors this week, and will continue the drive until the end of the month. The majority of the growers are heartily in favor of the movement, but some are rather slow in signing up. Some have already given contracts to buyers for this year's crop.

The organization work of the state tobacco pool has been progressing rapidly throughout the state according to the department of markets.

Expert Organizers

The department has secured the service of two assistants of Aaron Sapiro, co-operative marketing expert who is well known as the founder of the Kentucky tobacco pool and the California fruit and raisin marketing associations. Mr. Sapiro is much interested in the success of the scheme in Wisconsin, and being unable to attend to the organization in person, he has sent two of his ablest assistants into the state to give a series of lectures, and to render other aid in the organization of the pool.

Mr. Marvin, the speaker from Kentucky who addressed the meeting at Viroqua Friday, is thoroughly familiar with the tobacco situation all over the country, and was instrumental in bringing to the Burley district pool the success that it has attained.

"The Kentucky Burley pool has in a short time gained the favor of 95 per cent of the state tobacco growers, and the large tobacco companies," said Mr. Marvin.

"Before the pool went into operation," he declared, "the growers were in a very bad way because of inability to sell their product. When the proposition of a pool was put up to them, it was supported by business men and growers. The business men were anxious to see the growers make a fair profit so they might realize some return on supplies for which the farmers were in debt. In the Kentucky drive the bankers and business men, besides putting up the capital necessary to put the pool through the first year, got out on the highways and made a personal call on each grower.

Wisconsin's Problem Simple

"Wisconsin has not half the problem Kentucky had to contend with. In that state there are 55,000 growers and 57 different grades of tobacco, under their grading system. In Wisconsin there are only 6,000 growers and but about 18 different grades of tobacco.

"In Kentucky the tobacco companies have come to like the pool, because with the pool's system of selling a certain grade of tobacco, they buy a grade and get it, in a clean condition, and in every way as stated by the salesmen. Before the pool was in operation, several cents per pound was substracted from the purchase price, to allow for improper grading and padding of weights.

"Another great advantage of the tobacco marketing pool," said Mr. Marvin, "lies in the opportunity for co-operative advertising. With all the growers in the country solidly behind the proposition it would be possible to introduce the use of tobacco into many countries where it is now practically unknown, thus paving the way for greater production and increased profits."

Mr. Marvin was emphatic in his declaration that in all of his experience in the tobacco pool in Kentucky, only one grower expressed dissatisfaction over the workings of the pool and broke his contract. All others seemed well satisfied with the results.

All States in Pool

Nearly every tobacco state in the country is now signed up in the pool. The Kentucky quota is exceeded, and also the quotas of Tennessee, Ohio, Virginia and South Carolina. North Carolina is just about complete and organizers are working in Connecticut and Massachusetts at the present time. Wisconsin is the only remaining state which has a tobacco crop of any importance, and the work is progressing rapidly.

Westby 90 Per Cent

Jens Davidson, banker of Westby, has reported to the state department of markets that district number two has signed up more than 90 per cent of the acreage, and bids fair to go to 100 per cent. He declares that the pool will go over without fail, if the remainder of the counties persuade Dane county farmers to sign up immediately the required 75 per cent.

La Crosse county, with a much smaller acreage than Vernon, is being canvassed in the interest of the pool, and good results are reported, though the crop is scattered over a wide territory making the work of lining up the farmers difficult. The same difficulties are experienced in Monroe county, but the organizers there are confident of getting the required number signed up before the end of the month.

FROM THE FARM BUREAU

The Farm Bureau welcomes the Farm Page in the La Crosse Tribune and congratulates this enterprising newspaper upon the inauguration of this feature. This feature provides another means of getting the facts to the public, the story of the farmer. The economic facts relative to agriculture have not been understood by the American people, but we hope to get the story to them. The things we are accomplishing benefit many others than ourselves. The nation cannot prosper unless we do, and it is conceded that the foundation of all permanent prosperity and contentment is in agriculture. These economic facts have been brought to the attention of the American people through the Farm Bureau, with its millions of members, and the legislative conscience of the nation has been awakened to the needs of the farmer. The legislation enacted and proposed has benefitted and will benefit the public at large. The Farm Bureau presented the facts and spoke with the authority of the organization and was heard. We welcome the publication of farm news in the Tribune, and a better understanding of the problems of farming and a closer communion and sympathy with the agricultural population will undoubtedly result from the publicity. We join with the editor in requesting the kindly co-operation of the farmers of the county in making this feature interesting and successful.

CROP OUTLOOK IN COUNTY FAVORABLE

Crop indications were never more favorable than they are at present in La Crosse county. Corn is in advance of normal and small grains are all promising above the usual yield. The weather conditions of the past month have been almost ideal for all growing crops and the indications point to a season that will bring bountiful harvests.

LA CROSSE COUNTY FARM BUREAU NOTES

The county campaign for membership is making rapid progress, and judging from present indications the final limit will be the number of farmers in the county.

* * * *

Bureau members are requested and urged to make use of the facilities of the office of the secretary at West Salem. Secretary Sandoar is at your service and if he cannot supply your requirements or answer your inquiries he will find some one that can and will with cheerful promptness. Remember that any of the problems of the farm, technical or otherwise, will receive attention from the officers of the farm bureau, and that "Service" is the slogan of the bureau.

* * * *

The success of the tobacco pool is assured, and the La Crosse district is one of the first of the state divisions to complete the membership.

* * * *

The petition of the rural patrons of the La Crosse Telephone company for an adjustment of rates and improved service was heard before the railroad commission at the court house in La Crosse on Wednesday, June 21st. The complaint was substantiated by the evidence of a large number of patrons.

* * * *

Steps will be taken for the organization of the Ladies' auxiliary to the farm bureau after the county membership campaign is completed. The women are a live force in the organization and we hope to have the La Crosse County Auxiliary as an added factor in the activities of the farm bureau. We anticipate that they will give added zest to the work when they get started and make the male members hustle.

* * * *

The farm bureau trusts that the Milk Week campaign and the beneficial results from the education and publicity given to the public will not be forgotten or overlooked. The basis of child welfare especially and of human welfare in general is health and physical development; the foundation is in proper feeding. In its broad aspects, the proper feeding of children and adults revolves around a public recognition of the interdependence of humans upon dairy cattle. The white race cannot survive without dairy products. Let us continue the campaign so favorably undertaken and carried out by the farm bureau in La Crosse county.

* * * *

The directors of the county farm bureau were given a demonstration in the use of the radio as a means of dissemination of news and market reports and of matters of interest to the farmers at West Salem on Saturday. The bureau has under consideration the installation of a system of wireless apparatus for broadcasting the news to its members in this county.

* * * *

The canners of the county will complete the pack of early peas by the first part of next week. The late variety of peas will follow within a few days and the crop is promising a normal yield, due to the favorable weather conditions.

MARKET REPORTS BY RADIO DISCONTINUED FOR THE SUMMER

Service to be More Extensive Next Fall Plan of Department of Markets

MADISON, Wis. — The present noonday broadcast of market service by radio from the University will be discontinued June 30th to re-open September first with a more comprehensive service for all markets, according to the state department of markets in a report issued Tuesday.

"During the past all market information has been broadcasted by radio-telephone and telegraph," says Mr. Edward Nordman, director of the department, in the letter. "By this method it is possible to get the market quotations a few minutes after the sale or transaction has been completed on the market. You can readily see the immense advantage of this, especially in the shipping season when the right time to ship means real dollars and cents to you and the saving by knowing quickly the exact market situation will save shipping too soon or too late."

The farmers are asked to approve of one of two plans for the coming marketing season. The department suggests first that it will co-operate with the county agents or any farm association or bureau for the installation of a community receiving set. The second proposal is that farmers without receiving sets may arrange a service by which they may be called by telephone and given the reports from some one station in the community.

That the service next fall will be more extensive is now assured. It is probable that the reports will be sent out on the hour all through the morning with a complete resume at the noon day period.

SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE AND DOMESTIC ECONOMY IN LA CROSSE COUNTY FOUNDED IN 1909 HAS RECORD OF ACHIEVEMENT

ONALASKA SCHOOL ONE OF FIRST OF KIND IN THE STATE

Class Enrolling in September, 1909, was Composed of 70 members; Now 93

PROF. C. L. HATCH ENGAGED AS SCHOOL DIRECTOR IN 1918

School Shows Gain Under His Direction

The much debated question as to whether the County Schools of Agriculture and Domestic Economy really have a place in the school system of Wisconsin has been solved by at least one of the county schools in the state.

The La Crosse County School of Agriculture and Domestic Economy was organized in 1909 and was one of the first of its kind in the state. On the opening day of the school there was an enrollment of 70 students, which was increased to over 90 before the close of the school year.

For the next ten years the school passed through the same struggle that all schools of Agriculture in the state have passed through. Some of the other schools did not survive and at times there was talk of discontinuing the school in La Crosse county. In fact it seemed doomed until the fall of 1918, when Prof. L. C. Hatch, who for 17 years had been at the head of public school systems in the state, was engaged as director of the school.

Courses Made Practical

With Mr. Hatch's administration came new life to the institution. The courses offered were made thorough and practical, night classes and extension classes were organized, and in spite of the adverse conditions caused by the war and the influenza epidemic, the courses thrived and were well attended.

The La Crosse County School of Agriculture and Domestic Economy has an attractive location. The main building is so situated as to give a splendid view of the Black and Mississippi Rivers, the islands, the Minnesota and the Wisconsin Bluffs. The school with its well-arranged campus, with cement walks, drives and rockery, made attractive with shrubs, flower beds and a beautiful grove of native oak is the favorite spot in the community.

The object of the school is to give special instruction in agriculture and domestic science, aiming to educate young men and women for good citizenship and intelligent and profitable living. To this end the courses are practical and contain a minimum amount of theoretical matter. An effort is made in all instruction to enable the students to see the application of work pursued so that they can make immediate use of their training upon returning to the farm and home, or in any form of industrial work on which they may become engaged. Graduates of the four-year courses should be better fitted to continue work at college, normal school, or university than the average high school graduate.

Enrollment Now 93

The enrollment for the past year at the school was 93, the largest it has been since 1910-11, the second year of the school. The students are enrolled from the county at large, several of them being from the city of La Crosse. During the regular school year, the students who are unable to get back and forth from their homes each day, find rooms and board in the city of Onalaska.

Up until 1915, the course of instruction at the school was of only two years duration. Since that time several new courses have been offered, the principal course now being four years in length. A short course during the winter months is an attractive feature. It offers a place to men and boys to get a little more schooling at a time when the work at home on the farm is slack.

Another innovation at the school is the night class system. This class has so far been pretty much confined to cabinet making work, though instruction in gas engines is also given. Last winter there was a special class for women in gas engine work.

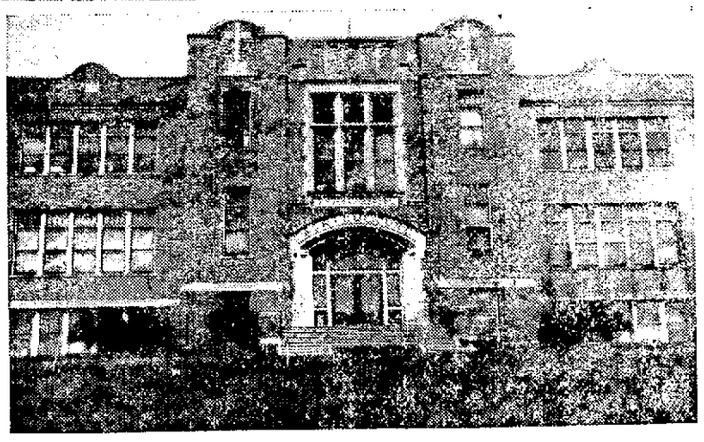

Pupils applying for entrance to the school must be 14 years of age unless it is deemed advisable by the principal and parents to allow them to enter younger. Eighth grade graduates will be admitted without examinations. Students having completed a high school course will be given credit at the Agricultural school as far as their work applies on the courses there.

Courses Offered

The regular four year course is divided into two parts, a course of Agriculture and a course of Domestic Economy. The Agriculture course is designed to give a practical training in agriculture and at the same time enough academic work to permit the student upon graduation to enter any college, normal school or university. The four year course in Domestic Economy has much the same object. It affords an excellent opportunity for training in intelligent home-making and for the acquiring of a thorough academic education. Graduates are admitted to higher schools of learning on presentation of diplomas.

In addition to these are the one and two year courses in Agriculture and Domestic Economy. The one year course is for boys and girls who, after graduating from high school, feel the need of practical training. The two year courses are intensely practical and are planned to give training to those who cannot take a longer course.

Upper—Picture shows Prof. Hatch of the county agricultural school with mixed herd of cattle on school farm.
Middle View of the agricultural school building at Onalaska.
Lower—Prof. L. C. Hatch, director of the school.

The winter short course is of twelve weeks' duration, and is for boys who must be on the farm a greater part of the year but who can spare a short time during the winter months for their advancement along agricultural lines.

The Smith-Hughes School provides for extension work among the farmers. By means of an endowment fund the classes in agriculture, stock judging and dairying are carried right into the farm yards in the county.

Students taking the rural school course at the La Crosse state normal school have been going to Onalaska to take their agricultural work at the county school for the past two years.

The work of the Domestic Economy department is carried into the homes throughout the county by the means of the Home Maker's Clubs. These clubs are given opportunities to study the latest developments in domestic science, and each year get together in a conference, run in conjunction with the annual county corn and grain show.

Each summer a short course of one week is held for the girls of the county. The girls come to the school and for one week live right in the building. The morning hours are devoted to their school work, consisting of practical domestic science and the afternoons are spent in making tours to the various factories and other points of interest in the vicinity of La Crosse and Onalaska.

SUCCESS WITH LIMA BEANS

Tenderest of all the bean tribe and last to be planted are the Limas, one of the finest garden vegetables. Both the bush form and the pole varieties are vegetables which should be found in every garden.

Usually, the pole varieties are the more satisfactory to a gardening beginner as they yield a much heavier crop and usually give more beans in a pod than the dwarf varieties, which need good cultivation and plenty of room to develop.

There are many complaints about Lima beans failing to germinate. In a majority of cases this is due to one cause. They weren't planted properly. The Lima must be planted edgewise with the eye down if germination is to be at all certain. If you have neglected this precaution and failed with Limas in the past try again and stick the bean into the earth edgewise and eye down and you will be rewarded by seeing the big, healthy seed leaves come pushing up to the light.

Owing to the difficulty of securing poles, many gardeners put up high fences of chicken wire for the Limas. This is a very practical substitute and one that works well. The poles should be set four feet apart and two plants allowed to a pole. It is best to plant four seeds to be sure to get two plants, thinning out when they have started into growth, retaining the strongest pair.

Soil cannot be too rich for Limas and a liberal coating of manure should be spaded into the soil, preferably in the fall, or if in the spring it should be well decayed.

The bush Limas come into bearing earlier than the pole varietes. They should be planted eighteen inches apart in the rows two to three feet apart with the eye down. They should be planted about two inches deep unless the soil is heavy and retentive, when an inch and a half will be plenty.

Do not plant eggplants in soil in which fresh manure has been spaded. Manure should be well decayed and thoroughly composted for eggplants.

SHORTAGE OF HELP ON FARMS AROUND HERE SAYS SCHULTZ

Farmers throughout the state, and particularly in the district served by the La Crosse Free Employment bureau are facing a shortage of help according to a statement made by R. F. H. Schultz, state employment officer in charge of the La Crosse office.

Mr. Schutz stated that he could place sixty men in positions at once on farms in this vicinity. The shortage of farm labor is due to the fact that the unemployment in other lines is decreasing, the demand for men becoming greater each day.

Good wages are being paid for farm help, especially for experienced hands. Anyone wishing a farm job should communicate with the La Crosse Free Employment office.

Scriptural

"How will you have your roast beef?" asked the waiter. "Well done, thou good and faithful servant," murmured the clerical-looking diner absent-mindedly.—Life.

LITTLE DAMAGE EXPECTED FROM 17-YEAR LOCUST

MADISON.—There is no cause for alarm at the appearance of the so-called 17-year locust.

H. F. Wilson, entomologist at the University of Wisconsin, predicts that little or no serious damage will result from its visit. In fact to those who know something of the habits of the insect much interest is attached to its coming.

"From the number of specimens and letters filled with alarm which this department is receiving, it appears that many localities are experiencing their first contact with the insect," says Wilson. "No damage to crops is expected, the only possible harm coming to young trees and nursery stock."

Force of Habit

"Enter," said St. Peter at the gate. The shade hesitated, gazed about uncertainly and started back to earth.

"What's the matter with that spirit?" asked the indolent angel who was lounging near the pearly turnstile.

"He used to be a plumber's assistant," said St. Peter, "He thinks he forgot something." — Birmingham Age-Herald.

FARMERS WARNED TO LOOK OUT FOR DANGEROUS WEEDS

Abundance of Rain and Warm Weather Make Weeds Grow Rapidly this Season

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE LEADS FIGHT AGAINST WEEDS

Quack Grass, Canada Thistle Named in Law

Wisconsin Department of Agriculture, C. P. Norgord, Commissioner.

"Abundance of rain in many section of Wisconsin, accompanied or followed by high temperatures, is resulting in very rapid growth of all vegetation, especially weeds," says A. L. Stone, Seed and Weed Control Division of the State Department of Agriculture. "This hastens the time when the noxious weeds like quack grass, Canada thistle, and others named in the noxious weed law, will reach the stage at which they should be cut to prevent them from ripening seed. In a certain county the farmers stated they could remember a time when Canada thistles were only one-tenth as numerous as they now are. If in thirty years, they are increasing with Canada thistle has increased to ten times its former size, what may expect in the future unless strenuous efforts are made to keep the weeds from spreading. Great responsibility for the future of prosperous agriculture rests upon the town, city and village officers and the weed commissioners appointed by them. From a large number of letters received, it is gratifying to note that many such officials and a large majority of Wisconsin farmers realize the menace to the community in which they live and are fighting to get noxious weeds under control and eventually to eradicate them.

Every interested official farmer owes it to himself and to the posterity of his children and of the state in future years to exert all his influence to create a community spirit which will insist that noxious weeds shall be kept from spreading."

MONROE COUNTY SOIL NEEDS MORE LIME IS OPINION OF LIDDLE

County Agent Says at Least 95 Percent of Farms Need Application of Lime

SPARTA.—Monroe county dirt is hungry—hungry for lime!

From ninety-five to ninety-eight per cent of the farms there need applications of lime soon and an increasing number are going to be fed, according to farmers there and to their county agent Earl Liddle.

"From the results of nearly 500 soil samples tested, we know our soils are lime hungry," reports Liddle. "Besides shipping in lime we hope to have at least two crushers at work in the county by fall. Eventually we have lime to be available in certain parts of the county which is of splendid quality."

Fifteen demonstration plots on farms in every part of the county and on every kind of soil in the county are being used to show the advantages of lime, as well as the different crops best used in the county.

"Lime, legumes, and livestock form the road to prosperity in Monroe county," says Liddle.

BEEKEEPERS URGE CONSERVATION OF SWEET CLOVER CROP

MADISON.—Patrolmen scare that sweet clover.

That is the appeal addressed to railway, highway, village and city officials throughout the state by the officers of the Wisconsin State Beekeepers Association.

The reason for this hurry up call is that officials generally regard sweet clover as a noxious weed and have sworn vengeance to eradicate it. Appreciating its value as a honey crop, the beekeepers of the state have to stay the sentence. Here is their appeal:

"Whereas, sweet clover is not a noxious weed but one of our best honey plants, and in view of the fact that our highway and railroad rights-of-ways are extensively cropped with it and as it is a practice of the section crews and patrolmen to destroy this plant, thus cutting off a good supply of nectar for honey production:

Be is resolved, that we both individually and collectively appeal to the railroad maintenance departments to instruct their section crews and patrolmen to defer the cutting down of this plant until after the blooming period."

Local bee clubs in all sections of the state are being urged to communicate at once with railroad officials and others who may be able to save more of this nectar-producing plant.

FIVE TONS OF BUTTER A DAY IN VIROQUA

VIROQUA, Wis.—Barron co-operative creamery, claimed to be the largest in the world in point of daily product of butter, has little advantage over Viroqua's co-operative creamery, which has over 700 daily patrons, officers assert. Last Monday these patrons made delivery of 33,775 pounds of cream, from which 181 tubs of 11,403 pounds of butter were made. The Barron creamery employs buyers, while Viroqua patrons all make personal delivery.

MARKET RALLIES

Selling of Oils, Steels and Motors Induced by Setback in Mexican Petroleum

NEW YORK—Mexican Petroleum reacted 4½ from the high of the first half hour but later bounded forward again to 199. The brief setback in that stock occasioned selling of other oils as well as steels, equipments and motors. On the fresh advance motor equipments and specialties were most prominent. United States Rubber, Kelly-Springfield and Goodrich rose one to two points with gains of one to three points for American Sugar, Postum Cereal and kindred shares. There was little for the rails but that group showed further firmness. Call money opened at 4 per cent against last week's final quotation of five per cent.

Last week's extraordinary movements of Mexican Petroleum were resumed at the opening of the stock market. The first transaction at 184½ represented again over Saturday's final price of 2½ points. In the next half dozen transactions, mainly in 700 share lots the stock rose steadily to 190, or four points over the year's previous high record. After a slight reaction the stock made further upward progress to 194½, at which [illegible] profit-taking caused a temporary halt. Pan American Petroleum "A" soon rose four points with a three point gain for the "B" issue. Other oils, Royal Dutch excepted, were moderately strong and Studebaker, Brooklyn Rapid Transit, and Virginia Carolina Chemical rose from large fractions to two points with some of the popular rails.

Mexican Petroleum reacted later to below 200 but Pan-American shares extended their gains and investment rails were higher. The close was strong; sales 800,000 shares.

WHEAT PRICES SAG

Cooler Weather and Predictions of Rain Act to Depress Values

CHICAGO, Ill. Cooler weather and probable showers led to lower prices in the wheat market Monday during early trading. Bears put stress too on gossip that export demand was failing to come up to expectations and that demand from domestic millers was slow. Besides, country sales of new wheat were reported as quite liberal. The opening, which varied from ⅛c decline to ⅛c advance July $1.11⅞ to ⅞, and September $1.14⅞ to ¾, was followed by a material setback all around.

Subsequently, attention to the German political situation together with weakness in foreign exchange tended further to depress the wheat market. Decrease of the visible supply total failed to bring any support to prices. The close was heavy 1⅜ to 2⅛c net lower July $1.11⅛ to ¼ and September $1.12⅞ to $1.13.

Corn went lower with wheat and as a result of improved weather conditions. After opening ⅛c to ½c down July 62⅛ to ⅛c the market continued to descend.

Heavy receipts and slackness of shipping demand here prevented any important rally in prices. The close was unsettled 1⅜ to ⅞c net lower, July 61⅞c.

Oats started ⅛ to ⅞c off July 37 to ⅛c and later underwent a further sag.

Provisions were weak.

SOMERSAULT DIVE

BY AILEEN RIGGIN

Olympic Fancy Diving Champion

The one-and-one-half somersault is one of the most spectacular among fancy dives.

When first trying it, is is apt to make a person a little dizzy, but this feeling will soon wear away.

A good, hard run is absolutely essential to the successful performance of this dive.

As you reach the free end of the board, spring from the board as high as possible.

As soon as you reach the top of your spring, bend at the hips, and rapidly revolve the body one and one-half times, straightening smartly just before entering the water head first, with the arms straight over the head, and the fingers and toes pointed.

Next—The standing back dive.

WITHIN AN INCH

Pat was the man who did all the odd jobs about the place, and, owing to petty thieving, his employer instructed him to get a good yard dog.

Pat was out all day and in the evening landed home with a dachshund.

"What on earth have you brought along, Pat?" queried his employer.

"Well, sir," said Pat, "he's the nearest I could get to a yard; he's two feet elivin inches long."—Minneapolis Tribune.

THE WANDERING SHEEP

The pastor (driving to church, to passer-by)—"Where are you going, John?"

John—"To church in the next parish."

Pastor—"I dont' like that. What would you say if your sheep strayed to some one else's property?"

John—"Well, s'far as that goes, I wouldn't say nothin' if the pasturage was better."—Kaspar (Stockholm).

JUDGE HIGBEE WILL HOLD CIRCUIT COURT THREE MORE DAYS

Judge Higbee will hold circuit court here for three more days, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, before closing his work for the summer. Monday morning the May jury was excused for the term and will not be called upon to serve unless some special case is brought up. One jury case was called Monday morning, that of the state against Harry Shannon, charged with attempting to shoot his wife. An affidavit of prejudice was filed by Shannon's lawyers, Hartwell & Brody. The case will be heard by another judge. Monday morning the court heard arguments on a demurrer to the suit filed by Daniel Sullivan, a student, against School District No. 1, City of Tomah. Sullivan was injured in the manual training department of the Tomah school and has brought suit against the school district. The court took the demurrer under advisement.

SUN DRIVING TOWARD CANTON IN ATTEMPT TO RE-TAKE CAPITAL

Peking Confident that Effort to Restore Southern Leader to Power Will Fail

PEKING.—By The Associated Press.—While advices from Amoy indicated that troops of Sun Yat Sen, deposed president of the Canton republic, were pushing toward Canton in an effort to recapture that city, other reports stated that these forces were scattered about Kiangsi province, disorganized and looting the territory. Official opinion in Peking Monday was that any attempt to restore Sun's regime would fail.

The latest reports reaching Peking related that Sun was detained aboard a gunboat at Canton and that General Chen was in full control of the surrounding territory.

Republican leaders in the north continue to express confidence in the restoration of an all-China parliament. They predict that discordant elements will be subdued under the military leaderships of Wu Pei-Fu in the north and Chen Chiung-ming in the south.

SUPREME COURT TO RULE ON IMPORTANT CASES DURING JULY

Decision on Constitutionality of Filled Milk Bill of Interest to Farmers

RULING EXPECTED IN ACTION STARTED BY LA CROSSE MAYOR

"Standing Bar" Case also to be Decided at July Term

MADISON, Wis.—Some of the most important decisions to be made by the Wisconsin supreme court for the year are expected when the court convenes again after July 4th. Because of several cases of state wide importance the court has been delayed in considering its work and decisions may not come until July 10th.

To the farmers of the state the "renovated row" case is of importance. The last legislature passed a law prohibiting the manufacture of a product in this state made by a combination of skim milk and cocoanut oil. A similar measure passed the house of representatives at Washington a month ago by a vote of 256 to 40. An action has been brought by the Carnation Milk Co., to restrain State Dairy and Food Commissioner, J. Q. Emery from enforcing the provisions of the law and the constitutionality of the measure is now before the supreme court for consideration.

Whether or not the people of the state will be able to vote on a home rule amendment to the constitution at November election will also be decided by the court in an action which has been started by Mayor A. A. Bentley, La Crosse, against Secretary of State Elmer S. Hall. The constitution requires that a proposed amendment must be advertised in the newspapers two years before it comes up for final action in the legislature and before the people. The home rule amendment was published for three months but by error the clerk of the senate certified to the secretary of state for publication an amendment which contained additional matter which had been stricken out. The question before the court is whether this is a sufficient publication as required by the constitution. The home rule amendment is one of the most important cases, especially to Milwaukee, to be passed by recent legislature.

After almost a year of delay the "standing bar" case started by Hugo S. Alley, Milwaukee, is before the court for consideration. The Severson law requires the removal of standing bars and curtains. This was challenged as drastic legislation and while it was sustained as constitutional in the lower court and appeal was taken to the supreme court for a final review.

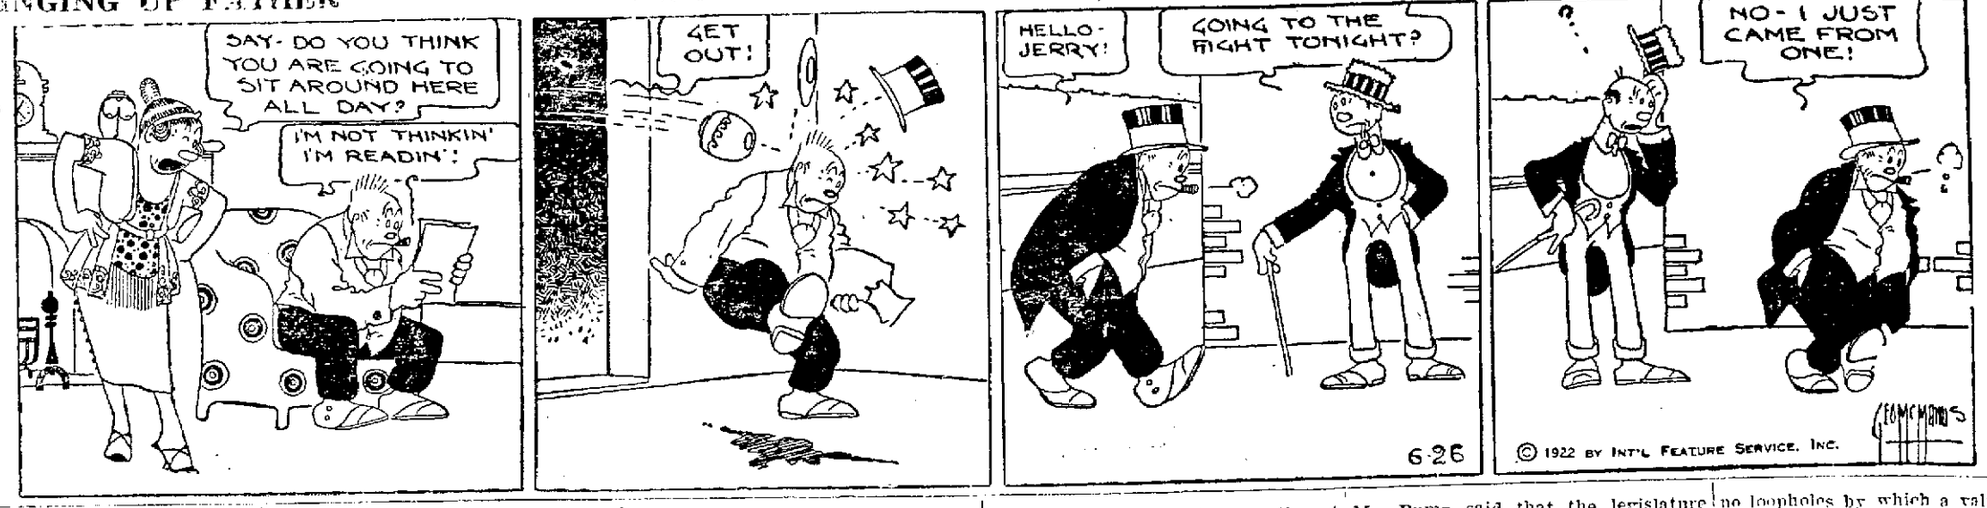

Probably the most important piece of litigation to the people of Milwaukee involves the validity of the law passed in 1921 creating the Metropolitan Sewerage Commission, Milwaukee, and giving to this commission power to issue bonds as a lien upon the property of the city of Milwaukee and outlying districts served by this sewerage connection. Nicholas J. Thelen, town of Greenfield, Milwaukee Co., has challenged the validity of the law and also the validity of the bonds. The lower court dismissed the complaint and Thelen took an appeal to the supreme court to have the highest tribunal pass on this important question.

Methods of fixing electric lighting rates by the railroad commission are challenged in three separate suits pending before the court brought by the cities of Eau Claire, Chippewa Falls and Menomonie. The railroad Commission in apportioning the expense of operation divided the costs between the different cities served. The cities of Eau Claire, Chippewa Falls and Menomonie contend that they are entitled to a lower rate than cities farther away from the Wisota dam because they are nearer to the power plant. An appeal has been made to the supreme court for a review of this important decision which will be one of the landmarks in the rate making history for public utilities under railroad commission control.

RULES COUNTIES CAN'T VOTE FUNDS FOR STORM RELIEF

MADISON, Wis.—County boards cannot validly vote a bond issue or appropriate public funds for aid of tornado sufferers, Franklin E. Bump, assistant attorney general, advised C. B. Ryckman, district attorney of Polk county Monday.

The county board had contemplated calling a special meeting to vote funds for relief of victims of the storm which struck four northwest Wisconsin counties on June 15.

"It is my opinion that by no possibility could any of the purposes authorized by statue as valid reasons for an appropriation be construed to include the purpose of raising funds for aid to storm "victims," Mr. Bump said that the legislature might grant this authority to the county boards but that it had not done so.

Governor Blaine is known to have considered calling a special session of the legislature to vote funds for relief, but found that the statutes left no loopholes by which a valid appropriation for the purpose could be made. The state constitution prohibits the use of public funds to promote private enterprises such as would be involved in tornado relief work.

UNIVERSITY SUMMER SCHOOL OPENS TODAY WITH BIG ATTENDANCE

MADISON, Wis.—The University of Wisconsin summer school opened today with an enrollment which is expected to exceed that of any previous year. Over 1,600 students attended their first classes of the six-weeks course.

School teachers returning to make special studies in their work make up a large percentage of those enrolled. The natural attractions of Madison as well as the extensive courses of study offered by the university during its summer session have attracted an increasing number of students during the past few years.
